Positive side of school story—pupils' success

"I thought I was failing my classes and my teacher made me believe in myself and said that I could do what I wanted if I tried. I took the advice and everything started going better for me."

This was one of the responses to a student survey in the Granite City school system, and Superintendent B. J. Davis told teachers Monday he agrees that the district and its students are succeeding in attaining their goals.

Addressing the faculty a day before 8,993 boys and girls began their 1982-83 school year Tuesday, Supt. Davis asserted, "We are good and getting better. As I look throughout the

$7 million school loans

By BILL WINTER of the Press-Record

Recession-related tax and aid reductions have hit Granite City schools harder than expected, forcing $1,700,000 in second-year tax borrowing, officials said Tuesday night.

In tentatively approving a $29,924,019 budget, up $3,415,122 from 1981-82 school expenses, the Board of Education decided to renege on its Sept. 14 in the hope of paring it sharply prior to the scheduled Sept. 28 enactment.

One member of the seven-member board, David Partney, mentioned the possibility of school districts being required to relinquish half of their 1982-83 raises.

Obviously jolted by the impact of a series of financial reverses occurring since the new fiscal year began July 1, the board said it will not only try to trim the '82-83 budget but also will begin planning now for potentially drastic curtailments affecting 1983-84 operations.

Director of Finance Norman S. Owca outlined state aid shortfalls and replacement tax cuts totaling $1,313,000 and noted unanticipated cost increases exceeding $511,500.

He also discussed problems associated with real estate tax collections, protested taxes, and the cost of borrowing added funds.

With $8,239,384 in real estate taxes extended for collection this summer, current plans call for $9,372,375 to be levied this fall for summer 1983 collection.

The school tax rate on each $100 of assessed valuation is seen as rising 5.3 cents, from $3.38 to $3.43. Assessment may increase from $243,768,768 to $273 million.

Tax levy hearings will be conducted Sept. 7 at the board office, 20th and Adams streets, and the annual hearings on Granite City school and Quad-City special education budgets are set for Sept. 28.

Owca said every effort will be made to avoid borrowing $1,700,000 in second-year tax warrants, but that the total could reach that level.

Partney responded that interest rates are likely to be much higher on second-year borrowing than on first-year warrants, which are the more conventional method of school borrowing.

Owca attributed the surge in "red ink" to "a lack of revenue, and unexpected expenses." A related article in today's issue outlines some of the factors.

He noted that the former corporate personal property tax was replaced several years ago by an increase in the corporate income tax rate.

Since some firms are suffering losses rather than earning profits, there has been a drop in the tax proceeds, Owca said.

Another point mentioned was that many of the fixed costs were determined by the board last spring, long before the Illinois Office of Education clarified the amount of state school revenue that will be forwarded to Community Unit District Nine.

Board President George Moore and Board Member Donald Stucke said it will be difficult to make many cuts in the newly-presented budget and the finance director agreed, saying salaries account for 77 percent and fringe benefits for another 10 percent of Debt, revenue 'disaster' hits

"Disastrous" developments affecting Granite City school revenue were cited by Norman S. Owca, director of finance, at Tuesday night's Board of Education meeting.

Noting that borrowing limits against tax collections are $5,202,049 in the education fund and $765,202 in the building fund, Owca estimated that an additional $1,700,000 may need to be obtained in the form of "second year" tax anticipation warrants.

He told the board, "Summarizing July and August events, our funds from the state were unexpectedly decreased by $1,313,000 and expenditures for three purposes (health insurance, heating and unused earned absence payments) suddenly increased by $511,500, not counting increases in interest on tax warrants ($82,000) and teacher retirement costs ($73,000). If it were not for these events, the district could have avoided second-year anticipation warrants."

"To further compound matters, there was a decrease in corporate taxes last year due to tax protests. This $347,521 could still be given to us if the protests are denied, but as of this date no hearing has been scheduled. I did not provide for this amount in the new budget because of the uncertainty of the outcome."

"Another factor is our past history of a 98 percent real estate tax collection. If the slowdown in the economy causes this to decrease to 94 percent, we could expect $300,000 less in tax collections."

"All in all, I have nothing positive to report at this time, other than saying that in January 1983 we may receive better news in the area of corporate personal property replacement tax revenue."

Owca, who was praised by board members for developing a new budget format giving more detailed information than in the past, commented that "because of the board's foresight the school district has been able to save in the following areas——$650,000 by reducing this year's teaching staff.

—$90,000 in fuel costs through energy conservation programs.

—$300,000 in the school cafeteria operations.

—$250,000 by reducing this year's custodial, secretarial and administrative costs.

"These savings total approximately $1,300,000 in addition to our federal energy grant of $180,000 to further reduce utility costs in this school year and in future years."

"Unfortunately, at the beginning of this fiscal year on July 1, 1982, and during the 1982-83 year's budget preparation in July and August, several events that have occurred have not been pleasant:

"1. On Aug. 10, we received word from the state government that we will receive $734,000 less in state aid this school year."

"2. On Aug. 18, the Illinois Department of Revenue unofficially projected a 20 percent decrease in corporate personal property replacement taxes, unless new legislation is enacted. This is a decrease of $570,000, of which $447,000 involves the education fund."

"3. During July and August, we experienced four large medical claims that resulted in additional costs to us of $185,000, which must be replaced in the reserve fund. Add to this an expected rise of $145,000 in costs, and we have an increase of $530,000 in health insurance costs."

"4. On July 13, the utility company

Granite council clears way for private ambulance service

By GEORGE ANN MCGEE of the Press-Record

The audience attending the Granite City Council session Tuesday applauded speakers protesting a proposed ambulance licensing ordinance that would have carried a $2,500 annual fee.

Several private ambulance representatives were part of the group that watched as aldermen defeated a motion that would have cut the fee to $100 and then compromised on a $500 fee, instead.

The amended ordinance was finally approved on a 10-3 vote after some angry words, both from aldermen and their constituents.

Voting for the ambulance regulating law were Aldermen Everett Morien and Casmer Skubish, First Ward; Sam Whitmer and Fred "Pat" Schuman, Second Ward; Carl Kittel and Paul Fink, Third Ward; Sharon Perjak, Fourth Ward; Walter Milton, Sixth Ward; and Paul Ray Bowler and Michael Modrusick, Seventh Ward.

Disapproving of the ordinance were Aldermen Warren Decatur, Fourth Ward; Jake Varadian, Fifth Ward; and Stephen Salich, Sixth Ward.

Before passing the law, the council heard from an angry resident, a nurse defending freedom of choice for the elderly and an attorney representing a possible competitor to the city's own ambulance service.

The law was brought before the council at the same time nearby townships, now dependent on Granite City for ambulance service, are preparing to abandon the city's service in favor of Campbell Ambulance Service, Inc. The new service is expected to start operations in the area Sept. 1.

Granite City has given those neighboring municipalities and townships an Aug. 31 deadline to either comply with higher ambulance rates and regulations or have service terminated.

Attorney Mark Stedelin, representing Campbell, the likely competitor, said he questioned the intent of the ordinance. He also cautioned city officials they might be restricting access to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, when requiring a business license of any ambulance service bringing patients into the city.

Tuesday night, the Pontoon Beach Board of Trustees expressed its that desire residents from the village be taken by Campbell Service to Oliver C. Anderson Hospital in Maryville, rather than St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

In response, Whitmer, chairman of the ambulance committee, said, "Campbell can't make it with just the townships. And from my point, he's not going to get Granite City."

Many ambulance calls are made by or through the city's police department, Whitmer said. He does not believe those employees would call a service other than that provided by the city.

Robert Thomas, president of Bob Thomas Memorial Mortuary, which provides non-emergency ambulance transportation, sent a letter to the council meeting protesting the proposed ordinance. Thomas represents one of a few funeral homes now providing private ambulance service to Granite City residents.

In the letter read by City Clerk Robert W. Stevens, Thomas protested the proposed $2,500 license fee and hinted the city was attempting to curb the use of private ambulance services.

Robert Simon, a city resident, led vocal objectors, calling the proposed ordinance "stupid, ignorant and barker." Simon suggested the city consider pulling out of the ambulance business. He was applauded when he left the speaker's stand.

Alderman Skubish said that, perhaps, the city should consider negotiating with Campbell to replace the city service sometime in the future. "You might have a chance to vote on that," said Whitmer, "the way things are going."

The Granite City Ambulance Department this year is receiving $210,000 in city subsidization.

Pontoon Beach opts for private service

By NANCY WEIL of the Press-Record

The Pontoon Beach Village Board unanimously approved an agreement at its meeting Tuesday night that calls from residents will not be accepted after Aug. 31, said Paul Bennett, village board president.

Negotiations were supposed to take place between Granite City and Pontoon Beach, but were cut off when the village was notified of the termination date, Bennett said.

Village trustees and several residents present at the meeting seemed pleased with the Campbell agreement, which provides that two ambulances will be on call for Pontoon Beach dwellers. Back-up units could be brought from Centralia and Bethalto, if needed.

The village board expressed concern about the city's tentative regulating ordinance, which would have required private ambulance services to purchase a $2,500 annual license if the private ambulances would enter the city limits to deliver patients. While Pontoon Beach was discussing the fee, the Granite City Council was simultaneously reducing the annual license fee to $500 (see related story).

Don Rea, village trustee, suggested that emergency patients be taken to Oliver C. Anderson Hospital in Maryville, instead of St. Elizabeth Medical Center. It also was decided that ambulance calls would be channeled through the police station.

Trustee Bob Vincent noted after the agreement was approved that the village still is owed about $5,000 from residents who have not paid for ambulance service from Granite City ambulances over the last three years.

"We have started on the delinquent bills. We expect action within 30 days. If not, we'll take some sort of legal action," he said.

After the meeting, Vincent said that much of the total is owed by those who repeatedly received ambulance service from Granite City.

The village board also discussed repairing several manhole covers and approved paying of the bills, including a new disability insurance policy for policemen and dispatchers.

Cable TV for Venice

By VALERIE EVENEDEN of the Press-Record

Early next spring, Venice residents will be watching cable television, at least those who want to subscribe to the service, if all goes as planned by the city fathers.

At Tuesday night's regular meeting, the Venice City Council passed an ordinance granting a non-exclusive franchise to CATV Cable System, headquartered in New York, to furnish cable TV service to the community.

The contractual arrangement is contingent upon mutual agreement being reached on two or three points, not yet fully explained by the company spokesman, nor thoroughly understood by the council members.

Doyle Duggan, CATV representative, made a presentation before the council and interested citizens at a public meeting last Thursday. He described the proposed services offered by his firm and explained cost factors.

Duggan had initially addressed the Venice alderman about a year ago, concerning the installation of cable TV.

The Venice ordinance, approved Tuesday on first reading, primarily is based on Duggan's proposal and follows the pattern of an agreement now in effect at Centerville, Ill.

WARRANT ARREST

While responding to a complaint call at 2200 Adams Street last week, officers found an outstanding warrant on file against Kevin A. Hurst, 23, of that address, alleging failure to pay the fine on an illegal possession of alcohol charge. In a court appearance the same day, Hurst was released to pay a fine before September.

896 respond to blood appeal

The Missouri-Illinois Regional Red Cross Blood Services has announced that 896 persons responded to last week's emergency appeal for type "O" blood donors. Of the 896 donors, 790 had type "O" blood. The number surpassed the goal of 700 originally set to replenish dangerously low supplies of type "O" blood.

"We are extremely pleased with the response to the emergency appeal," said Dr. Laurence Sherman, chief of Red Cross Blood Services. "It confirms what we already knew—that St. Louis area residents respond whenever there is a need. Our thanks to all he people who donated."

Dr. Sherman emphasized that, although hospital inventories of type "O" blood are now at a safe level, there still is a continuing need for blood donors. "We must daily collect 800 units of every type to meet the need of the hospitals we serve," he continued.

Anyone wishing to donate blood can receive more information by calling 1-314-658-2096.

Bigger air purity role for Ill. EPA

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency signed an agreement during the weekend to take over the federal programs which regulate hazardous air pollution and emissions from newly-constructed industry. "This agreement will simplify the regulatory process for Illinois industry and will cut down the number of inspectors needed to enforce the regulations," said Richard J. Carlson, director, Ill. EPA.

Starting Sept. 18, all Illinois companies which emit hazardous pollutants such as asbestos, beryllium, mercury and vinyl chloride must start reporting to the state EPA.

Under the agreement, the federal government will continue to set nationwide standards for hazardous pollutants and for new industry.

Illinois' EPA will assume responsibility for inspecting plants, reviewing permits for new one, and enforcing the regulations.

More than two dozen different types of industry are covered by the regulations.

Also delegated to the state was the special authority provided by the federal Clean Air Act to enter industrial sites to inspect records regarding the operation of air pollution sources.

Alleged false reports by 2

Two telephone conversations reporting a robbery, which was later found to have not occurred, were followed by the arrest of Thomas E. Noser, 20, of 2920 Wayne Ave. and a Granite City boy aged 16.

Each was charged with disorderly conduct.

Five young people had been asked by the manager to leave the parking lot of the Parkside food shop on Maryville Road at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

Calls from a nearby pay telephone, reporting a robbery at the store, were received by police a few minutes later.

Three youths who were questioned by the police were released without being charged. The other two individuals were held overnight, awaiting hearings.

There is a $5 late fee for registration at this time. Registration and schedule changes will be accepted from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Friday at the BAC Registrar's Office, room 2306 at the main campus, 2500 Carlyle Road, Belleville.

Shasta setting records

Shasta Beverages, Inc., on Monday reported record growth in grocery sales of its Shasta brand soft drinks.

Shasta sales growth for the fiscal year ended July 3 topped 5.6 percent, compared with an estimated 3 percent industry rate, according to Andrew E. Weidner, president of the California-based soft drink company. The firm has a soft drink plant in Granite City.

He said that significant increases in sales were noted for Shasta's regular (non-diet) flavors: 18 percent for 2-liter bottles, and 20 percent for 12-oz. cans, for a net boost in regular Shasta sales of 7.5 percent over the previous year.

"The strong performance is reflected in the company's 2.2 percent share of the $18 billion-a-year soft drink market," Weidner said.

"This is the hottest time of year, literally and figuratively, for soft drink sales," Weidner said.

"But we are especially gratified to see the remarkable impact of our marketing strategy, which involved changes in packaging and design as well as an aggressive national campaign."

Headquartered in Hayward, Calif., Shasta Beverages manufactures and distributes 37 flavors of diet and non-carbonated fruit drinks, and C & C Cola. Shasta Beverages is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Consolidated Foods Corp., Chicago.

Young dancer on cable TV

Shawnta Ray, 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Vicky (Couch) Ray of Edwardsville, formerly of Granite City, will perform a dance routine on the "Getting to Know You" cable TV show, hosted by local college students Mike Moore and Angela Grupas.

The show will premiere Thursday, Sept. 2, at 7 p.m. over South-West Cable TV's Community Access Station 1, with repeat presentations on Friday, Sept. 3, at 11 a.m. and Monday, Sept. 6, at 12:30 p.m.

Shawnta, a tap and ballet student at Jerry Green Dance Studio, 2400 Benton St., also studies violin and piano at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

She has appeared in a show, sponsored by the Downtown (Granite City) Restoration Society, and performed at the Sunset Hills Country Club at a dinner given by the Business and Professional Women's Club of Granite City.

To aid the Muscular Dystrophy Fund, Shawnta presented a song and dance sequence at a benefit show, recently staged at the Polish Hall in Madison, and appeared on cable TV with Mrs. Delores Hay, show chairman.

The young girl attends the Montessori private school in Edwardsville. Miss Grupas and Moore, both of whom will be college freshmen this fall, are employed in the Press-Record news department for the summer months.

Hearing on Moss Friday

A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Friday in Edwardsville on misdemeanor charges against Gerald Moss, 59, of 1818 Sixth St., Madison, a national trucking executive, in connection with an alleged scuffle he had with Madison Chief of Police Donald Bridick.

A Madison County grand jury last week returned a "no true bill" finding in sufficient cause to indict Moss on felony charges stemming from the incident Aug. 2, in which Chief Bridick grappled with Moss, who allegedly was armed and protected by a bullet-proof vest and was holding a man and woman at gunpoint in his house.

Moss, a trucking executive and former owner of the Barn and Plantation dinner theaters in St. Louis, still faces charges brought by the city of Madison on two counts of aggravated assault and one count each of unlawful use of a weapon and resisting a police officer, all of which are misdemeanors.

Bridick was on vacation when the grand jury returned its "no true bill" and said an associate called him Thursday after the hearing.

The facts surrounding the case were presented to the Madison County state's attorney's office and reviewed before being heard by the grand jury, Chief Bridick said.

Bridick and Patrolman William Weidner were responding to a telephone report that a man had taken two people from a vehicle at gunpoint in the 500 block of Ewing Avenue and walked the house on Sixth Street.

Moss allegedly had a handgun in his possession and Bridick attempted to arrest Moss and remove the weapon from his pocket. The two men struggled. At one point, the gun was pointed toward Bridick's stomach, the chief alleges.

Ernest L. White, an employee of a St. Louis private investigation firm, and his woman companion later told Chief Bridick they were seated in an auto working a surveillance when a man drove a van without headlights toward the parked auto at a high rate of speed.

The van's lights were turned on as it neared the auto and White began backing up his vehicle. White said the driver of the van, alleged to have been Moss, jumped out and pointed a .30-caliber carbine at the investigator.

Moss apparently believed the two were watching him, according to Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber.

Willing Workers' picnic Aug. 29

The Willing Workers' of America will host a picnic Sunday, Aug. 29, beginning at noon for all members and laid-off workers in the area. The picnic will be at the Granite City Army Installation Center (St. Louis Area Support Center-Granite City).

Those attending are asked to bring tableware, a picnic lunch and beverage for a family buffet. Seating also will be provided.

"With summer coming to a close, the Willing Workers will be getting up for a productive fall job search. Before that occurs, everyone would like to celebrate with those members who have obtained employment," a spokesman said.

DELAY HEARING ON ARMORIES IN STATE

Because of the unavailability of key members of the Illinois General Assembly's subcommittee on the Illinois National Guard Study Commission, the hearing previously scheduled for Sept. 1 on Aug. 31 has been postponed.

When the hearing is once again scheduled, the public will be notified, Robert C. Pechous, commission secretary, said Tuesday. The topic is the state's present and future National Guard armories.

New rules help kidney patients pay for care

Governor James R. Thompson announced Tuesday that the Department of Public Health has adopted new rules that will help more kidney patients pay for dialysis treatments under the state's Renal Disease program.

"The overwhelming response from dialysis patients indicates they prefer that the state continue to help pay for the dialysis treatment rather than for drugs, as originally proposed by the Department of Public Health," the governor said.

Thompson said he has requested Public Health to review the proposed rule changes in order to more fully address the concerns and needs expressed by the people the program is designed to serve.

In addition, the governor said he has approved a $220,000 increase in funding to the Public Health Fiscal Year 1983 budget for the Renal Disease Program.

Thompson said that funding for the program has been increased from $1.5 million in FY '82 to $1.72 million in FY '83 and that the number of patients who will receive assistance is expected to increase from 553 in FY '82 to about 600 in the current fiscal year.

The Department of Public Health will pay the difference between what is covered by Medicare and $150 — the rate of payment established by the Department of Public Aid for each dialysis treatment. Medicare covers 80 percent of the cost of dialysis treatment.

"Although the amount paid by the Department of Public Health will average about $10 less per treatment than was paid during FY '82, the new rule changes will make it possible for a larger number of patients to receive financial assistance for this costly, but life-saving, treatment," Thompson said.

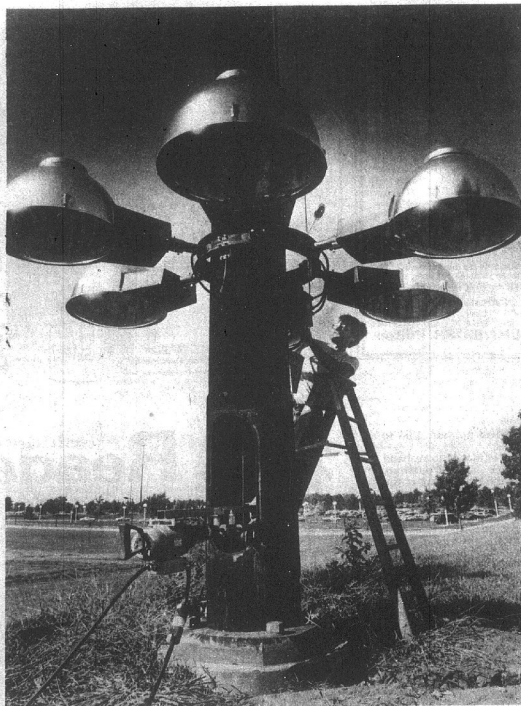

Fire deaths and injuries for 1982 similar to 1981

Fire-related deaths and injuries in Illinois for the first seven months of 1982 are similar to those for the same period of 1981, according to State Fire Marshal Jack H. Carter.

For 1982 and 1981, fire-related deaths totaled 184. However, there were three firefighters killed in 1982 and none in 1981. Fire-related injuries totaled 1,126 (322 were firefighters) in 1982 compared to 1,096 (309 firefighters) in 1981.

"These figures are from an analysis of articles provided by our newspaper clipping service," Carter said, "and do not include all of Chicago and probably some downstate deaths not recorded in newspaper clippings."

"With the number of fire incidents apparently holding steady also," he added, "we all must be vigilant and especially alert to fire prevention and fire safety measures."

YMCA fitness classes to begin on Sept. 8

William Zuti, national director of health enhancement programs for the YMCA, contends: "The most real motivation in fitness is that when you are fit and healthy, the quality of your life is so much better and you can do so many more things."

The Tri-City Area YMCA is providing new opportunities, beginning Wednesday, Sept. 8, for adults to become physically fit through three new fitness classes, called "Y's Way to Fitness."

Fun and Fitness will be the "way we go" in these classes, explained Dave Femrite, executive director of the "Y." We're going to have fun and get fit at the same time," he pledged.

Classes will consist of a warm-up period, a cardiovascular session and a cool down period, all under the direction of a qualified fitness instructor.

"The 'Early Bird' class is held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings beginning promptly at 7 a.m. and ending at 7:45 a.m."

There is time for a shower and breakfast before the workouts begin.

The "Mid-day" class is held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays between noon and 12:30. "Here is the ideal way to get a full workout in mid-day without prolonging your work day," Femrite noted.

The "After-Hours" class is held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 5:15 to 8:15 p.m. "This class affords you a great opportunity to unwind after a busy day," he added.

Classes begin Wednesday, Sept. 8, but a fitness evaluation from one of the YMCA's fitness experts is required before the class. For more information, interested persons may call 876-7200.

Council should slow down

"The more things change, the more they remain the same." This old adage may be oversimplifying things, but, in many ways, it remains true.

A good example is the Granite City Council. In years past, we have editorially suggested that the council's ordinance committee try to avoid presenting ordinances the aldermen have never seen and then asking for suspension of the rules for final passage at the same meeting.

The city's new ordinance committee is giving every indication that it plans to follow the old and blind procedure followed in the past. Carl Kittel, chairman of the new ordinance committee, finished reading an ordinance Tuesday night and then asked, "What is this?"

The previous week, the ordinance chairman suggested an 18-page ordinance, that will affect ambulance service for the city and the service of nearby municipalities, be passed the same night it was presented — to both the public and the council. It goes without saying that the other aldermen had not had time to study its contents and implications.

Yet, after it was read once, Kittel moved to suspend the rules and place the ordinance on final passage. Wisely, other aldermen stopped the railroad of the measure, saying that the ordinance is too important to the lives — quite literally "lives" — of our neighbors to be passed blindly.

The law requiring ordinances to be put on final reading at one meeting and passed at the next meeting is there for a reason. Even with an ordinance as simple as erecting a stop sign, the public should be given time to react before it is passed into law.

For too long, the city council has simply sidestepped the law — and the public's right to respond — by putting the vast majority of ordinances on final reading the night they are first presented.

It is shocking to think how many ordinances have been passed into law by the Granite City Council in recent years without even being read by the aldermen who passed them.

Betty Nash

Kelly Smith

Members of the Press-Record editorial staff surveyed persons in the Quad-City area asking if they feel the public schools are adequately preparing youths for their future "beyond the textbook." Their reactions follow.

Betty Nash, Madison

Yes, I think the schools are doing an adequate job. I wouldn't favor a property tax increase to maintain education, however. I think they (the school boards) can get by with what they're getting. I do think that there should be stiffer dress codes, though."

Kelly Smith, Granite City

"No. Teaching has gotten to be a business. I don't think the majority of the teachers take a genuine interest in students anymore."

Alfred Stroke, Granite City

"I think there's been a breakdown in the educational process. I think students are deceived by today's educational process. For instance, I finished high school while my buddies dropped out to get a job. Now, years later, they get their GED (General Education Development) and educators say that's just as good as the years I spent in high school. I can't believe that."

Jeanine Nonn, Granite City

"No, I don't think kids are as well prepared as they could be. I think they're (school boards) are adopting a curriculum that they know kids can pass. Just so they get their degree. Yes, I would favor a tax increase if that's what it would take to develop a curriculum that would really do students some good. If we want better schools and better students we need to pay."

Realtors are optimistic

Economic recovery is a fragile thing. It is going to take public optimism, a desire to spend money now, sitting in savings institutions, lower interest rates and a careful guiding hand from the federal government.

In conjunction with the recent Reagan tax package, a strong surge in the Dow-Jones Index, stock buying and declining interest rates has become evident, according to a communication received by the Granite City Board of Realtors from the National Association of Realtors.

"To those interested in buying or selling homes this is the best news in the last two years," since the VA and FHA interest rates are dropping to 14 percent, the national group added.

"If the trend continues through 1982, and we all hope it does, we will be able to anticipate a number of good things to come and we believe that lower interest rates will stimulate business in most areas, including automotive, steel and housing industry," according to the communication.

It concludes, "We applaud the trend and are hopeful of its continuation." Quad-Cityans couldn't agree more.

Look Ma, no cavities

For the record, it is worthy to note that the Illinois State Dental Society has reaffirmed its support of fluoridation of public water supplies. Fluoridation was the target of a circuit judge's ruling but is continuing throughout the state while an appeal is being heard.

A resolution adopted at the ISDS's annual session in Chicago this summer cites "overwhelming scientific evidence relative to its safety and effectiveness as a public health measure."

"This resolution exemplifies the efforts Illinois dentists are taking in trying to protect the dental health of both the children and adults of Illinois. The dentists of our state feel it is essential that fluoridation of water be continued because of its effectiveness in preventing dental decay, especially in children."

This community and region have played a major role in obtaining fluoridation benefits. At one time, the Quad-Cities pioneered with topical application, administered by local dentists who visited the schools in Granite City, Venice and Madison.

Addition of one part to each one million parts of water has been found to be a safe way of enabling teeth to mature with far fewer cavities. It might seem like the dentists are working against their own interests, but this is not the case.

The dentists' basic goal is to foster good health among citizens, and that is what fluoridation helps achieve.

It was Judge Ronald Niemann of southeastern Illinois who ordered fluoridation discontinued in Alton and told the state to stop enforcing water supply fluoridation statewide. The Illinois Department of Public Health appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court, which delayed the circuit court order until the appeal process is completed.

Fluoride was reintroduced to Alton's water and the state continues to enforce the law requiring fluoridation. In the opinion of Illinois dentists, it would be a big health setback for all if Judge Niemann or anyone else ever succeeds in blocking fluoridation.

Initiative out, but not down

Local backers of the citizen initiative proposal are deeply disappointed that it was ruled out of the Nov. 2 ballot by the Illinois Supreme Court July 30. Many had hoped to utilize the process to secure state tax reductions, such as those voted in California during the 1970s.

Foes of the proposition argued successfully that the state constitution permits citizen initiatives only on issues affecting the structure or processes of the General Assembly.

Samuel Witwer praised the court ruling, saying it has "properly eliminated from the ballot something that was never intended by the constitutional convention and voters in the first place." President of that convention, he concluded, "it's over now, and we won't be plagued with that problem."

"It has not worked well. California is getting a 'witches' brew' of problems," he said, referring to the elimination of many governmental services after the state used up a $5 billion reserve built up during boom years.

The local plan would have allowed Illinoisans to write their own laws through petition drive. If legislators did not enact a desired law within four months, or if the governor rejected it, it would go on the next general election ballot for adoption or rejection. Backers saw it as a way to circumvent "a legislature that refused to act on important subjects."

Witwer concludes that, while the initiative proposal in theory may have some attractive aspects, it could have "opened the door to almost anything and everything."

Hard-pressed taxpayers, meanwhile, say judges have no problems of their own — in view of their frequent and large legislatively-approved pay raises — and that both judges and lawmakers are too insensitive to the average family's problems in paying state and other taxes.

The initiative issue may have been decided, but the taxation argument is far from over.

Controversy over 4-year-old reader continues

To the Editor:

"This letter is in regards to the one written by Mike Lastier, concerning the unfairness done to his 4-year-old child, on the part of the Press-Record."

I am also a parent of a gifted child, however, I do not find it necessary to push his achievements on others in such a blunt manner.

The comments made by Mr. Lastier were uncalled for — such remarks as parents not being proud of their child just because an effort was not made to have their picture and achievements published in the paper.

The reward from the effort put out in the child's added knowledge. It appears to me, the only unfairness Mr. Lastier is worrying about, is that now, all the Press-Record readers are not patting him on the back for the accomplishments of his child.

I have five children — wonderful in every sense of the word — and I am thankful to God for them. That is good enough for us.

Not for publicity purpose, but for Mr. Lastier's information, my son did read 100 books in the 60 day period, and so did many other children.

However, Mr. Lastier might find it unfair of me to compare his child with mine, being that there is a difference in age; his daughter is 4 years old, my son is five.

Thank you for allowing us all to express our opinion. May God bless all the children, academically gifted or not.

Claims unemployment insurance applications were modified

To the Editor:

When a person fills out an unemployment form, the information should be accepted as truth. If he falsifies a claim, he is penalized in future weeks.

Why then, did an employee of the Granite City Unemployment Office take it upon himself to add information to several claims recently submitted? With this incorrect addition, several of my union brothers, sisters, and myself were given pay shortages.

Unemployment insurance is our only source of income to pay bills at this time. If we were to withhold one of their paychecks, their screams would be heard in Springfield.

We did not ask for this lengthy payoff, nor can we help our situation. Should we then fear these state employees because they hold our unemployment office?

I think they should remember that to be eligible for unemployment, previous earnings are required. With these earnings come taxes, which pay their salaries.

Employees of the Division of Labor, Division of Unemployment Compensation, should remember: don't bite the hand that feeds you.

Editor's Note: The writer, a laid-off Granite City Steel Employee, says that the error has been corrected by officials of the unemployment office and the approximately a dozen persons that he knows of whose applications were changed will receive their money, eventually. Still, he feels, the employee of the unemployment office, who wrote on the applications that the workers had returned to work for one week did not have the right to change the applications.

(Don Hamner, office manager of the Division of Unemployment Compensation here, told the Press-Record yesterday that the action "could have been wrong," but contended that his staff actually did the GC Steel employees a favor by modifying their claims.

"We could have returned the certificates to them and made them come in. Then, they would have lost two weeks pay," Hamner said.

(He noted that approximately 200 persons were laid off early this month by Granite City Steel and all except eight or nine were recalled. The unemployment office thought all 200 had been recalled, so they modified the applications. "We thought we were doing the individuals a favor," Hamner stated, noting that his only choices were to modify the applications or to return them to the individuals for certification.

Hamner noted that he must certify that all applications are correct to the best of his knowledge when he submits them to the state. "If we feel it is an improper one, we do it (modify the applications)," he stated.)

Bumpkin feels license fees in 'Grabbit City' a tad too high

To the Editor:

Following is an open letter to Granite City's mayor:

Dear Mayor Shooer, I think your idea of charging $2,500 for ambulance licenses is really grate.

Just think, you could make $7,500 for telling companies they must meet state specifications, and the state will be more responsible than you.

For all of the love, time and money spent to make St. Elizabeth Medical center one of the best places to go in the area, I'm sure they will love the extra time they will have on their hands because so many more people will be going to Oliver Anderson.

Of course, those people won't be spending their dollars in Grabbit City, but what's a few cards and flowers.

The funeral homes should love your idea too. They could get out of business and let some of your high-priced city employees take care of moving the people who have passed away. Death and taxes may be the only two sure things in life, but not in Grabbit City. 'Cause taxes there will make death wait.

Your city employees list in the paper keeps getting longer, but I guess there are more and more relatives to worry about.

Why don't you put up toll booths at the city limits and charge the delivery trucks and such for entering the city, or even the people who want to shop in Grabbit City. Go for the bucks, Mr. Shooer, 'cause as long as the streets go two ways, people will be going out of Grabbit City more than in.

Believe it or not, us country bumpkins know the roads to a lot of places that have as much or more to offer than Grabbit.

By the way, if there is any fee for sending this letter into your town, send me a bill, a self-addressed stamped envelope, and $25. A COUNTRY BUMPKIN the expenditures, leaving only 13 percent for non-payroll costs.

Certificated personnel are guaranteed work for the year if they are not notified otherwise by the preceding April.

Owca said there will be a $39,000 drop in pupil transportation funds from the state, and there is still uncertainty over the amount of driver education reimbursements.

Adding to the difficulty of paring the budget is the fact that the district, in order to curb spending, has been reducing the amount of its warehouse inventories, the discussion brought out.

Noting that most school employees received pay boosts of more than 9 percent in the second year of the 1981-83 agreements, Partney said they may be willing to accept only 4 or 4½ percent.

"To help the district maintain its present standards."

Board Member Thomas Miesky said the school district has been aware of worsening budget imbalances and that it developed a range of contingency plans more than three years ago.

He called for "taking those plans off the shelf, dusting them off" and deciding in the near future what additional cost cuts should be made.

Partney said numerous meetings may need to be scheduled to permit thorough reviews of existing programs and costs.

State law required tentative budget adoption this week but it will be possible to revise the initial figures between now and final action on the budget, Sept. 3, J. Davis pointed out.

Board members decided to assemble at 7 p.m. Sept. 14 for the sole purpose of reappraising the 1982-83 budget.

Owca said he planned to confer with bankers yesterday on the district's borrowing needs.

"We need to start making plans now for 1983-84" cost-cutting in a number of categories, Miesky said.

Partney voiced optimism that school staff members would be receptive to contract "givebacks" because of their interest in the viability of the school system.

Projected tax levies are to be reviewed on the night of Sept. 7 to allow at least 20 days between those hearings and adoption of the levies Sept. 28.

The new school budget will be on public display at the board office for a month, beginning today.

Secretary Robert Maxwell said the special meeting Sept. 14 will be helpful in that it will permit time to go over each phase of the budget proposed for the current year, with administrators on hand to provide background information to the board members.

He praised the wealth of data in the inch-thick budget, and Moore, Partney, Miesky, Stucke and Treasurer Dewey Melton also complimented Owca on his work. Moore Worthen was absent.

Owca informed the board members, "At your June 1 meeting, I reported we had borrowed $2,631,000 in the education fund and $155,000 in the building fund. Since then, we borrowed an additional $1,720,000 in the education fund and $373,000 more in the building fund."

"As of now Friday, Aug. 20, we had borrowed $4,351,000 in the education fund and $628,000 in the building fund."

"Because we have begun receiving our 1981 real estate tax collections, we have repaid on the tax warrants $1,068,379 from the education fund and $180,096 from the building fund."

However, with more than that needed, it will be necessary to issue up to $1,700,000 in second-year tax warrants during the 1982-83 year, he estimated.

Ambulance service

Colonial Haven Nursing Home, Inc., said she came to the council "to speak for residents of my nursing home."

The director said that, although state law requires nursing home residents be regularly examined by their doctors, only three of the 22 doctors on call at the facility come to Colonial Haven to see their patients. The end result is numerous ambulance trips.

The registered nurse defended the right of the elderly to choose what ambulance service they consider best to carry them to their doctor's office and to the medical center. She said her clients now select from the several different ambulance services, with rates ranging from $65 to $125 per run. The top fee represents the charge of the Granite City service.

In addition, the private ambulance companies do a lot of charitable work, including absorbing fees in some instances, she said. The director warned against any action that would "rip off" the geriatric residents.

Winnie Sasysk, wife of Madison Mayor Mike Sasysk, was attributed with selling more than 400 tickets for the dance, greatly helping in its success.

Leo Schermer of Schermer's Garden Shop donated the trees and flowers raising dance was hosted by the Women's Division at the Lion's Home in Madison. Shirley Adams was the chairman for the dinner-dance, with a portion of the proceeds aiding the beautification project.

A St. Patrick's Day fund

"The net result is that we still owed $3,282,620 on education fund warrants and $367,903 on building fund tax warrants Friday."

"This Monday, we received another big installment of newly-collected taxes. As of noon today, Aug. 24, we owed $1,004,106 in the education fund and $23,942 in the building fund."

"There is still a need to borrow until our 1981 real estate tax collections exceed our debt. I am requesting authority to issue new tax warrants for $850,000 in the education fund and $237,202 in the building fund beginning Sept. 1." These two amounts were approved by the board Tuesday night.

Owca said the most that can be borrowed against the 1981 taxes is $5,202,049 for the education fund and $765,202 for the building fund, under Illinois law restricting the amount of such loans.

However, with more than that needed, it will be necessary to issue up to $1,700,000 in second-year tax warrants during the 1982-83 year, he estimated.

State's Attorney Don W. Weber said Monday no one will be fired or demoted in his office for failing to give to his re-election campaign. An aide has asked staff members to make contributions of up to $2,250.

Alton Mayor Paul Lenz has proposed locating a new Clark Bridge south of the site where a replacement lock and dam are being built.

The last of the state money needed to complete and furnish the new SIUE gymnasium building has been authorized by the legislature and governor.

Campaign literature on Gov. James R. Thompson's record in office was produced by state workers on government time. Aides are defending it, saying most of the material is intended for official business.

Members of Local 799, State, County and Municipal Employees, have voted not to reopen talks with the Madison County government on their present contract.

Neil Hartigan, Democratic attorney general nominee, declined Monday to endorse an elected state commerce commission. He accused his opponent, Atty. Gen. Tyrone Fahner, of hypocrisy on the issue, asserting that Fahner, did not take a stand until it was too late to put the proposal on the Nov. 2 ballot.

The Southern Illinois Business Development Corporation has received its state certificate of incorporation and will hold its first board meeting Sept. 2. Directors include Alan Richardson, Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce executive vice-president.

The eastern part of the Madison County Courthouse roof may have to be replaced.

A new Illinois law allows the Bi-State Development Agency to issue tax-exempt industrial revenue bonds and to develop industrial parks and parking facilities. An industrial park is planned near the Bi-State Parks Airport in Cahokia.

Mary L. Novich, 25, Collinsville, received slight injuries at 2:20 p.m. Wednesday in a Bellefonte Village parking lot collision between the left front of her southbound auto and the front of the westbound car of John Tolan, 3230 Colgate Place.

Indefinite shutdown

The American Steel Foundries plant tomorrow will cease operations for an indefinite period due to poor business conditions, William P. Donovan, works manager, said.

The latest shutdown is the first one in the last 20 years. It will not be accompanied by a return-to-work date for employees.

The plant, part of a division of Amsted Industries, employed an average of 1,780 in 1979. Today, about 600 remaining employees not already on layoff status will be affected.

Donovan said, "Around 50 employees overall," including maintenance personnel, will work during the shutdown period.

Employees will have to depend on public assistance for a while and notification by mail to learn when operations will resume. The plant manager said that no estimates of when workers might be called back.

"There are absolutely no work orders in the system," Donovan said. The plant makes railroad freight cars and during the 1970s had a long backlog of production orders.

In previous plant shutdowns, the plant awaited expected orders. "Now we are at a point we have nothing," he said.

Three days ago, 600 returned to the plant after a one-week layoff, in hopes that the plant would resume operations "at a lower level." Employees ranks had previously been thinned Aug. 13, when about 290 were given indefinite layoff notices.

The 320 joined about 745 employees already on extended layoffs.

The plant's last regular continuing period of operations ended June 25, when the doors were shut for several weeks.

American Steel continues to be affected by a decline in demand for steel castings in the freight car industry. The Granite City plant produces cast steel side frames and bolsters.

In recent years, Amsted has invested extensively in plant improvements and expansions here.

Donovan said the plant will reopen as soon as orders are received.

Kids Crusade opens Sunday

Tri-City Park Tabernacle, 3400 Maryville Road, will be conducting a major "Kids Crusade" beginning Aug. 29, at 7 p.m. and continuing on through Sept. 1, according to the Rev. Jim Parks, pastor of the Tabernacle.

The event will begin Sunday through Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. each night according to Dale Dickey, coordinator of the event. He will be assisted by his wife Betty.

The Crusade will feature puppet shows, clowns, "Time Tunnel" Bible heroes and complete children's choir and illustrated stories, Dickey added. Hot air balloon rides will be given to 25 winners and a free pizza and coke party, being co-sponsored by Panter's Pizza, will also be awarded to the winners. In order to win, a child must bring five visitors or more to the crusade.

Admission is free and attendance prizes will be awarded. Dickey added the event is open to the public and parents are invited to attend the crusade.

audience, I am reminded of your competencies, of your accomplishments, of your loyalty, of your efforts and dedication. I am reassured that our future together is bright.

"Just as you did, a number of years ago I chose teaching as my profession. I'm glad I did. There is so much that is right about the schools. I'm happy now to be a superintendent in public education. In anticipating the future, I am especially happy to be your superintendent."

Davis told the gathering, "Much of what is accomplished is not statistically measured, but I believe each of you should take immense pride and interest in the fact that—on our 1981-82 standardized achievement tests, given at the fourth, sixth and seventh grade levels—our pupils scored above the national norms in every total skill area, including reading, language, mathematics and the total test battery."

"Latest American college test scores for our two high schools showed that in English, math, social studies and natural science, and on the composite score, our students scored above the national average in every category and equalled or excelled the Illinois average."

"Our kids learn because they regularly attend classes taught by highly qualified teachers. Average achievement in 1981-82 was 95.5 percent. The national average is 92 percent."

"The portion of our pupils not suspended or expelled was 97 percent."

"Average tardiness at the high schools last year was only 3.2 times per student."

"Of those who start school, 88 percent of our pupils graduate. This compares very favorably to the national average of 75 percent."

"Our services for handicapped and exceptional students are among the most extensive and effective anywhere. Our vocational training is being well received."

"Our music and arts have long been exemplary."

"The accolades could go on and on. Our progress has been outstanding."

"We've proved it can be done, and is being done now—in Granite City and other school districts. But what about the future?"

"Things will not be easy. Adversity will shadow our path. Finances will be extremely limited, compared to the job to be done. And many ways that we presently do things must and should be changed."

"But, as proven so many times in the past, we do our very best work when we are hard-pressed."

"We will continue to bring a good, sound educational program to the pupils we serve. Students must earn trust and respect by showing that, even in a period of retrenchment, quality can triumph."

"One of my more pleasant experiences as a superintendent came when I read the comments made by your students as they finished the sentence, 'A good thing that happened to me at school this year was—"

"The responses were varied—but expressions of gratitude to their teachers and principals were dominant."

"The opportunity to make a real difference in students' lives still exists probably more now than ever. The influence you have on people is endless. There is no job more important."

"Bell Telephone has a popular slogan: Reach out and touch someone. We are fortunate that, as teachers, we have the privilege and opportunity to do this every day."

"As you look around, those who find extra time, energy and resources are the ones having more fun and making their contribution count."

"Believe, yourself, what we tell students: 'You get out of something what you put into it.'"

"I dare you to be all you are in your personal and professional life, not because your colleagues expect it of you or someone is taking advantage of your talents or good nature, but because you want it and because it will make your life more meaningful."

"People rarely succeed at anything unless they have fun doing it. Cooperation is: doing, with a smile what you have to do anyway."

"I urge you to enjoy making a difference in others' lives, and to speak up for your chosen profession and the tremendous job we do."

"Our public schools are doing a better job of educating all the children than they have ever done—and better than any other nation in the world."

Brandon Heights residents will be excluded from meeting with IEPA

By PATH HAY LUTZ

For the Press-Record

In a private meeting called for Thursday, Sept. 2, the Madison County Special Area Sewer District Committee and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency will finally determine whether the sewer line in Brandon Heights will be moved to Old Alton Road, according to State's Attorney Marshall "Zeke" Smith. "Somebody has to do something," Smith said. "We have just taken too long to settle this issue."

Brandon Heights residents will be excluded. "The meeting is private because the people in Brandon Heights cannot come to a consensus among themselves," Smith said. "We cannot have a meeting and get anything accomplished with several people who do not agree on an issue."

Otis Scholehl, a resident of neighboring Moline Acres, stated that he and other members of Moline Acres do not want the pipeline moved to Old Alton Road. "We are all set to have the sewer in back of us," Scholehl said. "We will have to pay a lot more for the move to Old Alton Road."

Referring to a monetary incentive initially offered to the citizens of Brandon Heights, Scholehl said, "I want money, too, if you go down Old Alton Road."

As early as October, the committee and Mayor Paul Schuler of Granite City hope to hire an engineer to perform a study on the Granite City Wastewater Treatment Plant. The "mutually agreed-upon" engineer will be chosen from one of two engineering firms and Granite City will share the cost of the study with the sewer committee.

Attorney Smith will prepare and submit a proposal to Mayor Schuler, who then will recommend that it be passed at the next board meeting on Sept. 15. According to Smith, "It is pretty much up in the air right now, but Mayor Schuler is very receptive to the idea of us working together on this thing."

Also at last night's meeting, it was noted that the sewer district owes the city of Granite City and Precast Metals approximately $19,495, according to County Auditor Arthur "Pete" Fields.

In a letter to the committee on Wednesday, Fields indicated that Precast Metals had been paying usage fees to both Granite City and Special Service Area Number One. Fields recommended that approximately $9,417 be paid to Granite City and the remainder be paid directly to Precast Metals.

Committee members agreed to pay both parties promptly with the recommendation that "someone should make sure that Granite City does not take any more payments from Precast." According to Sewer District Superintendent Gene Fuchs, "Precast is not in the Granite City service area and only we should be billing them."

Also at last night's

SUSPECTS in two Granite City police investigations, both currently being sought, have a similar appearance. The bearded individual is wanted for questioning in a rape occurring Aug. 14. The other suspect is sought for an Aug. 19 armed robbery at the Crews liquor store. Each is about 5-5 tall and about 25 years old.

Rites held for Olin Crippen

Funeral services were held Friday, Aug. 20, at 11 a.m. at the Crain Funeral Home in Anna, Ill., for Olin Henry "Hub" Crippen, 89, of Anna, father of the Rev. Henry Crippen of Granite City. He died Tuesday, Aug. 17, 1982, at the Union County Hospital in Anna.

He was born Sept. 13, 1893, in Pulaski County, Ill. His wife, Mrs. Marie (Fisher) Crippen, died Aug. 20, 1980, and a son Jimmy Crippen died in 1977.

Survivors include three other sons, Carl Crippen of Payson, Utah, Elmer Crippen, Cape Girardeau, Mo., Jesse Crippen of Dongola; four daughters, Cora Ellis and Ruth Price of Mounds, Anna Mae Taylor, Springfield, Ill., and Juanita Jerrell of Anna; 14 grandchildren, several great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren. The Rev. Verlee Eaker officiated and burial was in Ulin Cemetery.

Because We Care

We've found people who understand how to cope with grief are often better prepared to face death when it occurs. Therefore, we have developed a program for community education to provide information on a wide range of subjects, including why we have funerals, talking about death with children and coping with the death of a loved one.

The messages are portrayed with great sensitivity. And, we believe they can stimulate open discussion and lead to increased understanding of some very difficult subjects. Often, we work with teachers, counselors, and club leaders in presenting these programs to classes and seminars. We are pleased to make them available to families, churches, schools, and civic groups.

If you are interested in any of our helpful programs, please feel free to call us for more information.

Cable TV

responsible for keeping the city financially solvent, is a five percent fee to be paid to the city from local gross revenue collected by CATV System.

Granite City's contract with South-Western Cable TV gives the city three percent of the base rate charged subscribers, but nothing from additional service fees.

In Venice, the monthly base rate for a primary (single) TV set will be $9.95, which includes 14 channels. The monthly rate for secondary television sets will be $2 each.

An extra fee of $9 will be charged for premium movie service and $7 each for any of three other movie channels.

Four movie channels will be made available to subscribers—HBO, Movietime, Cinemax and Showtime, according to the proposal.

Subscribers who have cable service installed during the initial installation phase (first TV set) will pay $15 and each additional set installed during this phase will cost $5, the proposal states.

After the initial installation in the community is completed, a primary or secondary installation will cost the subscriber $20 per set.

Other aspects of the cable TV ordinance approved Tuesday show a remote control device should cost $2 per month and a key lock, enabling certain channels to be blocked out when a parent is away from home, will cost either $1.50 or $2 monthly.

Special channel service with a converter will cost $5 per month and a music channel, also to be made available, still is open for negotiation, Mayor Tyrone Echols said.

Special services to the city will include two free installations of extended community antenna service to the Venice City Hall and single installations at each elementary school—public and parochial—and secondary school and the public library and at such other monitoring locations as shall be designated.

The number of locations is subject to negotiation between the city and the company and it was proposed the senior citizens center be included.

A second prerequisite stated by the city council in the ordinance and subject to final agreement with CATV is the establishment in Venice of either the cable service business office or a head-in tower.

CATV presently is installing cable service in Brooklyn, Ill., and a tower reportedly is to be constructed in that community, which also would serve Venice.

First Ward Alderman Phillip Daniels said he believes the engineers haven't yet decided where to place the head-in tower.

Mayor Echols replied, "Well, our feeling will be that we'll have to get one or the other (office or tower) or both."

Another clause in the ordinance that was discussed at length by the aldermen dealt with possible future increase in rates.

Specific terms state, however, that "No increases in the rates charged to subscribers shall be made except as authorized by the board (city council) after an appropriate open public hearing affording all interested parties due process."

The document continues—"However, the company may add to the monthly service charge specified above (previously stated) any taxes or fees levied upon its gross subscriber revenues by the city, state or federal governmental bodies, and any fees or charges imposed upon the company for the use and distribution of copyright program material."

City Attorney Lawrence Hartman noted that litigation is being pursued through the courts seeking residual rights from movies and other programs now telecast without copyright fees over cable TV.

Cable service would not be subject to Venice's utility tax ordinance, Mayor Echols said. Then he smiled and added, "But people might run their TV longer and their electric bill will go up."

The new ordinance calls for the company to post a $15,000 construction performance bond and to show insurance against claims caused by the construction, erection, operation and maintenance of any structure, equipment or appliance, amounting to not less than $500,000 to any one person and $1 million to any one accident.

Insurance policies against liability due to injury or death, amounting to $500,000 to any one person and $2 million to any one accident, also must be guaranteed by CATV.

The city reserves the right to forfeit the franchise and terminate the agreement for specific reasons after 30 days notice is given the cable company.

The firm must be granted a hearing before the council and allow time for corrections to be made prior to the agreement being dissolved, it was stated.

Heard several comments from council members about the length of time involved before cable TV service actually reaches subscribers, Mayor Echols noted that CATV must first negotiate an agreement with the utility company for use of poles and other necessary facilities.

"And, you know how long it takes to do anything when you start talking to the power company," he commented.

GC Council defeats $2.58 million levy

A proposed 1983 tax levy, sparking debate with its fire and police pension for fiscal year 1983, was defeated in an informal vote taken by Granite City aldermen Tuesday.

The city is required to present a levy figure to County Clerk Evelyn Bowles by Sept. 14.

After the levy failed a voice vote, finance committee chairman Alderman Walter Milton said he had no other choices left to give the council.

The $2.58 million levy Milton had backed would have meant only a slight tax increase in next year's tax bills. It could have possibly resulted in a lower tax rate, if the city's assessed evaluation of increased millage rates.

A future 10 percent raise in the city's total assessed valuation would have dropped taxes to about $1.37 from the current $1.48 per $100 assessed valuation, based on Milton's defeated $2.58 million levy.

"Taxes to me is a bad word," Milton said at a finance committee session Tuesday morning. But committee member Fourth Ward Alderman Warren Decatur said, the city has been "riding on the crest" of a yearly state-set tax multiplier to pay rising city expenses.

The tax multiplier can hike the assessed evaluation of taxable property, raising taxes.

According to Decatur, since 1975 the council has passed a series of employee pay raises without making any significant adjustments in its tax levy. Last year, the city was forced to borrow $600,000 and initiate new tax revenues.

Finding the tax levy objectionable for a different reason, Robert Harris, president of the Firemen's Pension Board, and member Robert Bell took a hard line approach to the proposed $100,000 cut to the pension fund at the committee meeting.

The president said Milton's suggested $200,000 pension allocation — about $300,000 short of state actuary requirement — was in violation of state law. Improper funding would make violators of both the pension board and council, Bell said, although he was willing to compromise on a $300,000 pension contribution. The same amount the city contributed last year.

At the public hearing prior to the regular council session, George Smolich, assistant fire chief, also voiced his objections to the pension cuts. Several aldermen agreed.

Smolich was the only member of the audience to speak at the public hearing.

First Ward Alderman Everett Morlen, police committee chairman, criticized the levy because it contained no specific funds to rehire four police dispatchers on layoff status.

Morlen first tried to bring a motion to the floor to set aside for dispatchers a certain portion of a disputed $283,875 in the levy tentatively intended for 1983 payroll increases.

Fourth Ward Alderman Sharon Perjak, a member of the negotiating committee, said the set aside amount could equal about six percent raise for city employees next year. She said, however, such a raise would depend on the financial circumstances facing the city next year.

Milton suggested the set aside payroll money be used to fund the pensions, in lieu of raises, if firemen insist on fuller pension funding.

After the debate had ended, Mayor Paul Schuler told Milton to instruct the city attorney to bring in the defeated levy again Sept. 7 in the form of an ordinance. In the meanwhile, Schuler said, aldermen could privately inform the city attorney what items they want included in the levy.

"We've been talking quite a while," the mayor said. "I don't see any other way to do it."

After the debate had ended, Mayor Paul Schuler told Milton to instruct the city attorney to bring in the defeated levy again Sept. 7 in the form of an ordinance. In the meanwhile, Schuler said, aldermen could privately inform the city attorney what items they want included in the levy.

"We've been talking quite a while," the mayor said. "I don't see any other way to do it."

Seize 50 pounds of marijuana; arrest man

Billy Joe Creek, 31, of 1916 Fourth St., Madison, was arrested Tuesday after Department of Criminal Investigation agents seized 50 pounds of marijuana from his home during a raid.

Warrants for possession and delivery of marijuana were pending at press time this morning and Creek was being held without bond at the Madison County Jail.

Authorities said a DCI undercover agent purchased an unspecified amount of marijuana Monday evening from Creek at his home.

A search warrant was issued and DCI agents went to Creek's residence Tuesday, found he was not home, and conducted a search at 8:47 a.m., officials said.

A copy of the search warrant was left at Creek's home. He was arrested at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday when DCI agents saw him leave Herman's Pawn Shop in Madison allegedly after a gun transaction.

Fructose pro, con

By GERALDINE L. BOWER
Fructose, a type of simple sugar found naturally in fruits, vegetables and honey, is now being touted by some as a "super sweetener" that is supposedly healthier than regular table sugar (sucrose).

Fructose sold for sweetening in Illinois primarily is derived from corn and is sold in the form of high fructose corn syrup, sometimes abbreviated as HFCS. According to Sheila Ashbrook, food and nutrition specialist at the University of Illinois, the syrup is composed primarily of glucose, another simple sugar. Crystalline fructose also can be purchased at some Illinois grocery stores, and it usually is 100 percent fructose.

Since there is a lot of controversy right now about the wisdom of including fructose in diabetic diets, diabetics should consult their physicians about its use in their diets.

Claims about the use of fructose as an aid in weight control, because it is "sweeter" than table sugar, may be misleading.

Actually, the perceived sweetness provided by fructose varies, depending on how it is used. Fructose is about twice as sweet as table sugar in cold liquids. But in warm or hot foods, the sweetness of fructose is similar to that of table sugar.

In addition to being more expensive than table sugar for home use, fructose does not have the same baking properties as table sugar. Baked goods made with fructose have a texture, different from conventional cakes and breads, even if the recipe used has been developed for fructose.

Also, liquid fructose is messier to use than table sugar and requires an adjustment in the liquid and sweetener contents of traditional recipes.

You cannot just substitute the same amount of fructose syrup for sugar. You usually must use slightly less fructose and cut back the water or other liquid, depending on the concentration of the syrup you're using.

When you add all of these factors up, there really seems to be no advantage at the present to using fructose instead of table sugar in home cooking.

New laws may speed property tax bill work

Gov. James R. Thompson has signed four bills approved by the General Assembly and has signed two others with changes. His actions included:

—Signing Senate Bill 1538, requiring the Department of Revenue to notify county clerks of the final local equalization factor within 30 days after hearings on the equalization factor are completed. The bill seeks to remove local uncertainty of the final equalization factor.

—Approving Senate Bill 1562, which removes a provision in the state Revenue Act that prohibits county clerks from using estimated equalized assessed valuation or estimated rates in overlapping tax districts. The change will allow timely processing of property tax bills, the governor said.

—Signing Senate Bill 1537, which will include sales assessment ratio studies used to determine the multiplier as part of the Revenue Department decisions open to judicial review.

This new law provides that judicial review should not delay the computation, mailing or payment of tax bills.

—Approving Senate Bill 1540, a measure that requires the Revenue Department to consider the use of unconventional financing in a property sale in calculating the equalization factor.

For example, SB1540 excludes from the sale price of a home—used in determining the equalization sales ratio—any amounts used for personal property or certain sales finance charges.

—Amendatorily vetoing Senate Bill 1287, changing a portion of the bill to give the Cook County Board, rather than the state, the authority to establish assessment districts and determine reassessment periods in Cook County.

—Approving Senate Bill 1539, which calls for vacant lot sales and initial sales of residential property converted to condominium property to be excluded from the sales ratio studies used by the Department of Revenue.

Thompson said he removed the portion of the bill that would have required vacant lot sales to be left out of the sales ratio study because such a provision would "result in a less, rather than a more, accurate equalization factor." The legislature will consider the governor's changes in 1939 and 1287 during its fall veto session after the Nov. 2 election.

Daily Globe ups price to 25 cents

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat will increase in price from 20 cents to 25 cents for its daily edition starting Sept. 1, the newspaper announced yesterday.

It was noted that the cost of newsprint, the paper on which newspapers are printed, has risen 20 percent from $75 a ton to $95 a ton since Oct. 1, 1979, when the Globe last increased its price.

The weekend editions will stay at 50 cents.

Suggests Missouri and Illinois standardize air control goals

Missouri and Illinois should get together on their plans for implementation of clean-air regulations, according to a spokesman for the St. Louis Regional Air Commerce and Growth Association.

In a statement delivered to the states' pollution control agencies, Frank Hackmann, chairman of the RCGA's clean air subcommittee, said there should be regional consistency in the application of clean-air regulations.

Hackmann is environmental and energy counsel of the Ralston Purina Company. He submitted his statement to the Missouri Air Conservation Commission hearing in St. Louis yesterday and to the Illinois Pollution Control Board in Edwardsville today.

Hackmann noted several differences between the state implementation plans proposed by the two bodies. Missouri's proposed SIP for mandatory vehicle inspection and maintenance in non-attainment areas in 1983. The Illinois plan proposes that inspection-maintenance be implemented, if necessary, at an unspecified date in the future.

Hackmann said both states should do the same thing, whatever it is.

Illinois has proposed the requirement that reasonably available control technology (RACT) for industrial pollution sources be applied statewide. Missouri has proposed RACT be required only in non-attainment areas. Hackmann suggested that Missouri's proposal was more reasonable.

Missouri's plan, Hackmann said, "does not provide an adequate margin of growth," that is, the allowable remainder of emissions which can be accommodated without impermissible levels of pollution.

He pointed out that a plan allowing no margin of growth means the state has made it a public policy that "it does not want growth, does not want to accommodate new entrants to the work force, and will not seek its future in new manufacturing-related or other air emission-related employment opportunities."

Hackmann praised both states for working on developing a "banking" program by which industries in theory would reserve future air emissions for specific periods of time. Thus reductions in current emissions would not result in the irrevocable loss of the ability to add a limited amount of emissions later.

Banking would "accommodate the reasonable fluctuations in industrial activity" and "permit orderly plant expansion planning."

Hackmann pointed out that federal ozone standards could be exceeded by just six hours of ozone concentrations of .12 parts per million or more over a period of three years.

Perennial pupul peril — head lice

By MARY RICHARDS
Illinois Department

One problem that seems to turn up every fall, shortly after school starts, is head lice.

It has become almost routine to have several schools report in with infestations of head lice. It is not always the same schools, of course.

Head lice is a problem throughout Illinois, and it is no respecter of exclusivity. Head lice can strike anywhere.

It is a popular belief that head lice will only thrive in an unclean environment. But head lice in no way implies poor housekeeping or a lack of personal cleanliness.

Head lice comes from direct contact with another person or indirect contact through the use of lice-infested clothing, bedding, hairbrushes or combs.

Don't blame your child if he gets head lice. It has nothing to do with how often he shampoos his hair or takes a bath.

Children pass head lice from one to the other when they play together, when they exchange caps, when they put on someone else's jacket, or when they share combs and brushes.

The small, whitish, oval eggs of head lice, called nits, are attached to the hair shafts near the scalp, especially at the nape of the neck and in back of and above the ears. The lice are often not seen because they are usually present in very small numbers. Bites by lice and the accompanying scratch marks can usually be seen, though.

The nits resemble dandruff, but dandruff is flat and is easily removed from the hair. Nits aren't.

They are attached to the hair shaft with a glue-like substance and cannot be removed easily by pulling on them.

Also, contrary to popular belief, intense itching is not always present when a person is infested with head lice.

When scratch marks become infected, a person may experience swollen lymph nodes in the neck.

Those who do find head lice on their child should contact the school nurse.

She can advise on how to rid your child and articles in your home of these lice. There are special shampoos that will get rid of lice, and some schools ask that children be kept home until after at least one application of such a shampoo.

The state health department, in an effort to control the spread of head lice, recommends that you keep your child at home until the first application of medicated shampoo has been given.

A second shampoo application is recommended 7 to 10 days later.

Additional information on head lice is available from school nurses, physicians or the Illinois Department of Public Health, Division of Disease Control, 535 W. Jefferson St., Springfield 62761.

GC traffic arrests were up 466 percent

By VALERIE EVENEDIN

More drivers in Granite City were arrested for traffic violations last month than in some of the preceding months added together, with traffic arrests up by 466 percent over July last year.

Forcible rape was the only other category of crime statistics which increased in July over the same month a year ago, according to reports compiled by the Granite City Police Department and released by Police Chief Ronald J. Veizer.

Two forcible rapes occurred last month and one was cleared by arrest. None was reported in July 1981.

There were no criminal homicides in July of this year, nor any in the same period last year.

A total of 821 traffic arrests was recorded in July 1982, amounting to an increase of 645 more citations being issued over the 176 tickets received by traffic violators last July, Chief Veizer said.

The department answered a total of 2,052 complaints during July, he reported.

Other statistics compiled for July 1982, with last month's figures and the July 1981 data listed in sequence, are:

Criminal homicides, 0 and 0, same; robberies, two and four, down two; assault, 37 and 46, down by nine; burglaries, 41 and 51, down by 10; auto burglaries, 19 and 38, down by 19; larcenies, 111 and 134, down by 23; and auto thefts, nine and 19, down by 10.

In the auto accident summary, there were no fatal accidents recorded last month in Granite City, nor any in the first seven months of the current year. Likewise, in July 1981 there were no fatalities, but two had been recorded earlier that year.

Other statistics recorded by the police department also continue to show a downward trend this year.

Personal injury accidents numbered 32 last month and 173 for the first seven months, while in July 1981 there had been 34, making a total of 229 in the preceding months of 1981.

Property damage accidents amounted to 62 this July and 608 to date this year. In July 1981, there were 91 property damage accidents and a recorded seven-month total of 665.

Forty-two persons were injured in accidents last month, while 48 sustained injuries in accidents in July 1981. To date this year, there have been 213 injuries, while 305 sustained injuries in the first seven months of 1981.

In addition to the traffic arrests, 122 other arrests were effected in July 1982, a decrease from the 169 figure listed last July. To date in 1982, there had been 1,019 arrests. In the first seven months of 1982, there have been a total of 994 other arrests.

The number of overall arrests, including traffic, listed in the current year is 3,551, compared to 3,014 at this time last year.

Fifty-five additional charges were filed last month for a total of 377 in the first seven months and 62 in July 1981 for a total of 478 in the same period of time.

Total charges filed in all categories during July 1982 amounted to 998 and 3,928 to date this year. A year ago, 497 charges were filed in July and a total of 3,492 during the seven-month period.

CHARGES ARE FILED
AFTER VENICE FIGHT

Thomas Joseph, 21, of 215 Hampden St., Venice, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct, resisting arrest and battery after police found him and Joe Russell, 1526 Bertha Lane, Pacific, Mo., involved in a fight at 219 Hampden at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Officers reported that they had to pull the two men apart and that Joseph used loud, profane language and tried to provoke Russell to continue fighting.

Joseph was forcibly removed from the squad car at the Venice Police Station where he refused to provide booking information or give police his belongings, it was reported. It was necessary to use force to put him in his cell, police alleged. Russell told authorities that he tried to avoid the fight, but Joseph hit him in the face without warning.

Lawsuit challenges Ill.
off-track betting law

If a lawsuit filed in Cook County Circuit Court in Chicago is won, businesses such as the former Finish Line Express off-track horse race betting parlor in Granite City and Venice, could return to this area.

Chester Davis, a 38-year-old Chicago paraplegic who is unable to go to the racetrack to make a bet, has filed the suit, claiming that a new Illinois law barring off-track betting, which became effective Monday, violates his constitutional rights.

The new law prohibits anyone from taking a bet to the racetrack except for the bettor.

Numerous Finish Line Express offices popped up in Madison and St. Clair counties when a St. Clair County attorney determined that accepting bets at such offices and then transmitting those bets directly to the racetrack was acting only as "a messenger service," and did not violate state law.

Subsequently, the Madison County state's attorney's office contended that the activity was illegal gambling and ordered arrests. The Illinois attorney general's office agreed that it was gambling, so the offices were closed.

However, the stronger Illinois law then was passed to prevent recurrence of such off-track betting services.

DeMolays attend the 54th annual conclave

Western Illinois University Campus at Macomb, hosted Illinois DeMolay's 54th Annual Conclave during the weekend. Activities centered around Higgins Hall, the 21 story residence building, and the University Union with sports jambores held on the athletic fields in Brophy Hall and Western Hall, on the university golf course, and the Park and Put Course off Campus.

The keynote of the conclave was "this year marks the 250th Birthday of our First President, George Washington. Presidents of the United States have been Freemasons, but only George Washington was both president and master of his Masonic Lodge at the same time. Therefore, we pay tribute to George Washington, the Man and the Mason!"

The sports jambores were held Thursday and Friday with the grand opening session Thursday evening where the local chapter received the following trophies: "1982 Illinois DeMolay Bowling - third place"; "1982 Illinois DeMolay Softball - third place"; and "1982 Illinois DeMolay Publications Contest - first place". The chapter entered their newspaper "The Master Councilor's Voice" for this competition. Jerry Singleton Jr. was awarded a high series trophy in the Illinois DeMolay bowling tournament. Terry Perrin and Jimmy Stuart were each awarded "Senior Salesman Illinois DeMolay Membership" plaque and were feted to a special prime-rib luncheon for their membership recruitment in lieu of an all expense trip to the International DeMolay headquarters in Kansas City which had been planned but not carried to completion.

Gene Ross, Right Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, Grand Lodge A.F.&M. of Illinois as master of ceremonies. "Dad" Ross also sat in for several numbers with the western band.

He has been on the local chapter's advisory board for a number of years and is an Honorary member among his many other masonic honors. More than 600 were in attendance. A rock dance was held following the banquet where Jobs Daughters and Rainbow girls from bethehs and assemblies from throughout the state were in attendance. They and their advisors also were present at the grand banquet and grand breakfast.

Less school food waste is expected

Elementary schools across the nation can now use a school lunch serving plan that seeks to reduce food waste, cut costs, and give students greater choice in school lunch meals, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Mary Jarratt says.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture officially extended an optional serving, five-choice school menu plan, called "offer versus serve," to elementary schools under regulations published Aug. 13 in the Federal Register. The rule implements without change a USDA proposal issued in March.

Under "offer versus serve," children take at least three of the five foods which schools must offer in lunches to qualify for federal reimbursement: meat, milk, bread, and two fruits and/or vegetables. Schools are permitted flexibility in further choices.

USDA has required "offer versus serve" in high schools since 1975 and has made it optional for middle schools and junior highs since 1977. Now it is optional for elementary schools as well.

The plan is intended to reduce the amount of food wasted in the national school lunch program and, therefore, lower program costs—and to give schools more flexibility in meeting minimum school lunch nutrition requirements.

Attends Early Education Institute

Helen L. Miller, representing the Early Childhood Association of Granite City, recently attended the Early Education Institute: Parents as Teachers, at the University of Missouri - St. Louis. The main speaker was Dr. Burton White, well-known author of a child development book for parents, "The First Three Years of Life."

The Early Childhood Association of Granite City is composed of teachers at nursery schools and day-care centers, and kindergarten and primary teachers in the public schools in Granite City. Mrs. Miller teaches kindergarten at Logan School.

Dr. White praised the research of Dr. Arnold Gesell and Jean Piaget. He explained the findings of his Preschool Project in the late 1960's and of the Brookline Early Education Project which field tested the idea that a school system should provide educational guidance for parents from the birth of their children. Instead of waiting until that child entered public school at the age of six.

The work done by Piaget, Gesell, White and many others have shown that "for most children free from major (handicaps) in the first year of life, the direction of future development began to be revealed towards the middle of the second year of life and was rather well established by the third birthday."

A child's learning patterns, especially language patterns, are well established by the age of three and will effect his ability to learn the rest of his life, it was stated.

In 1978 Dr. White established an independent nonprofit agency called the Center for Parent Education, Mrs. Miller said. The goals of the agency are to get more people interested in providing help for better education in the first three years of a child's life, and to provide services to professionals working in the field who assist parents in the education of their children during the first three years of life, she explained.

Programs, such as those which Dr. White advocates, are home-based programs in which school districts provide trained and certified early childhood teachers, resource centers, and support groups for parents within the school district who request it, Mrs. Miller said. Education for parenthood programs are surfacing all over the country and in Canada.

Many lay people along with certain leaders in education, such as the United States Secretary of Education, T. H. Bell, are strong supporters of education for parenthood. As many as 500 new programs for new parents sponsored by church groups, mental health agencies, public schools have been established in every state of the Union, the local teacher noted.

Parents are the first and the most important teachers a child will ever have, Dr. White said, and stressed the importance of educators supplying information and assistance to families who request it.

His program, "New Parents as Teachers," is designed to provide educational guidance to parents "to make their job less stressful and more pleasurable." He also feels that such a program is "a good way to involve the whole family very early in a child's education."

Attending the institute with Mrs. Miller was Dr. Suzi Nall, chairman of the Elementary and Early Childhood Education Department of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Mrs. Miller is a member of the steering committee of the Early Childhood Association at SIUE.

Prisons, state projects funded

A newly-signed law provides $130 million for Illinois state construction in the 1982-83 fiscal year, not including transportation projects. Of that total, $33.7 million was released to complete planning and begin construction of a 750-bed medium-security prison at Vienna.

"By veto and reduction action, I have trimmed most of the additional new spending by the legislature that would have increased the total 16 percent beyond last year's in this fiscal year," Gov. James R. Thompson said.

"During economic recovery, it is imperative to distinguish between the state building that is needed, wanted and that which we can afford."

He approved $124.3 million for projects supported by the administration, including $91 million for seven projects to expand and improve the state correctional system.

He authorized $5.9 million of the $27.7 million added by the General Assembly.

The governor approved new appropriations for:

- Construction of a new medium-security prison at Vienna ($33 million).
- Conversion of Dixon Mental Health Center to a medium-security prison ($30 million).
- Phase II expansion at Sheridan Correctional Center ($17 million).
- Construction of resident units and a multi-purpose building at East Moline Correctional Center ($6.5 million).

—Construction of a new kitchen and dining facility at Joliet Correctional Center ($3.87 million).

—Planning for a new 750-bed medium-security prison ($500,000), the site of which has not yet been announced.

—Planning for conversion of Bowen Mental Health Center in Harrisburg to a juvenile correctional facility ($300,000).

—Phase III construction of the State of Illinois Center in Chicago ($30 million).

—Rehabilitation of elevators and mechanical systems of the Stratton Office Building in Springfield ($2.2 million).

—Acquisition of a building for use as a library storage facility at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale ($1.6 million).

—Planning for a new 1,400-unit returns to the Assembly, which will consider the governor's actions during its fall session.

The release of money for Vienna will allow bids to be accepted for site clearing and rough grading. The planning portion of the funds will be used to fund design changes that could result in savings in construction, he said.

Gaffner says Price leaning on others' work

Congressman Melvin Price, D-East St. Louis, has sponsored few bills to benefit the district, Robert H. Gaffner, Republican nominee in the new 21st District, told Collinsville Rotarians last week.

He said Price has depended on other congressmen to take the lead. He cited Missouri Congressman Robert Young's proposal for a second lock and dam at Alton, and his proposal for refurbishing Illinois-Missouri bridges, legislation Gaffner says should have come from Price.

"He simply has not used the power of his office to help alleviate the serious unemployment problems that face this district," Gaffner said, noting that 18.7 percent jobless in Granite City and 13 percent in Madison County.

Price has not seen fit to introduce legislation which would make domestic steel more competitive by prohibiting the dumping of cheap foreign steel in this country, nor has he actively sought foreign markets for Illinois coal," Gaffner contended.

He pledged to introduce such legislation, if elected Nov. 2, while actively seeking new industry.

"Businesses have continued to either leave this area, temporarily shut down or just plain close up shop," Gaffner alleged. "The steel and coal industries are the backbone of this area and they are both being forced to lay off and terminate workers at rates unheard of since the Great Depression."

"When we bring this budget under control and when we lower interest rates, then our factories can build and expand."

"For more than 40 years, a liberally-controlled Congress has proven that ever-greater spending can only lead to the problems we have today."

"The economic picture is beginning to brighten slightly, but we must persevere in our efforts. The only way to guarantee success is to defeat the big spenders now in Washington and to elect fiscally conservative candidates who are truly concerned about our economic state."

Gaffner proposed the creation of advisory councils on business, industry, labor, municipalities, agriculture, education, health and human services to make recommendations on legislation affecting the 21st District.

"Operations and hospital rooms cost a lot more than you think."

Farmland preservation law signed

The new Illinois Farmland Preservation Act extends a 1980 executive order on land protection.

"Illinois' farmland is a limited resource not an abundant commodity that can be recklessly used," the governor said during the weekend. "This measure will work toward continuing state government efforts to effectively manage a rich natural resource."

The new law orders the formation of an Inter-Agency Committee on Farmland Preservation, a panel that will be comprised of representatives of 10 state agencies and departments.

They are: the Capital Development Board; the Departments of Agriculture, Commerce and Community Affairs, Energy and Natural Resources, Mines and Minerals, Transportation and Conservation; and the State Environmental Protection Agency, Bureau of the Budget and Illinois Commerce Commission.

The Agriculture Department director will be chairman of the committee, which will prepare policy statements and working agreements analyzing state government land conversion projects.

The law also gives the Department of Agriculture additional enforcement power which will prohibit state funds being spent for land acquisition or construction until it has conducted a study on the project's impact.

The department has 30 days to conduct a study of land scheduled to be converted from agricultural use to non-agricultural use. If it fails to conduct a study in a month's time, the project can proceed.

STATE HELPING CITY

Governor James R. Thompson during the weekend awarded the City of Mattoon a $162,000 community development block grant to be used to assist two businesses, General Electric Company and Superior Equipment Manufacturing Company. The money will enable GE to retain at least 180 employees, and to transfer equipment for Florida.

Workshop on aging set for Sept. 25

As part of Church Women United's ongoing community action outreach, the local organization will sponsor a day long workshop addressing the unique problems in intergenerational responsibility.

Entitled "As Parents Grow Older," the workshop will be held on Saturday, Sept. 25, from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Central Christian Church, 2020 Johnson Road.

Margaret L. Henderson, who designed the workshop while completing a graduate certificate in Gerontology at SIUE, explained the concept of the "sandwich generation."

"Many adults are caught in the 'sandwich' of caring for the needs of both parents and children while trying to lead productive lives of their own. This can be a heavy burden and society has made little or no provision for support for people struggling with these problems. Adult children are often reluctant to voice feelings toward elderly parents, especially if they feel these feelings are negative. New studies show that it helps to share these feelings and recognize that others feel the same way."

The psychological aspects of aging with emphasis on behavioral changes and discussion of chronic illnesses will be included in the morning sessions. The afternoon sessions will focus on improving communication.

Participating in the workshop will be Dr. Anthony J. Traxler, Professor of Psychology and Director of the Gerontology Program at SIUE; Betty Streiker, MSN, instructor in nursing at SIUE, who will discuss chronic illnesses of aging; Debra N. Thrush, M.A., who will conduct sessions on improving intergenerational communication. The principle speaker for the day will be Dr. Ronald Boto, a member of the All University Committee on Gerontology at SIUE.

Nona Corzilius, president of Church Women United, has invited the general public to attend this helpful and timely workshop on aging. Cost, to cover materials, is $2.50 and participants are asked to bring a "brown bag" lunch. Further information, available by calling 876-8414 or 431-6287 after 5 p.m. or write: Church Women United, 2100 Lindbergh Blvd., Granite City, IL 62040.

Cruse expects 1.03 multiplier

By BILL WINTER
of the Press-Record

Granite City Assessor Von Dee Cruse foresees a multiplier of 1.03% as a possibility for the property tax base upon which next summer's bills will be based.

He told Granite City Rotarians on Tuesday that real estate here currently is assessed at 33.17 percent of market value, only slightly below the one-third level required by state law.

Although a 1.0350 multiplier on top of the past two years' 1.2111 and 1.1513 multipliers appears likely, it is excessive; it would actually raise local assessment above one-third of market value, Cruse estimated.

He assailed the effect of a three-year averaging procedure and voiced hope that this will be eliminated by the legislature and governor in the near future.

While stressing that decisions about local taxes are made by the elected governing boards here, rather than himself, Cruse praised them and said he believes residents "are getting their dollar's worth of service for each property tax dollar."

He noted that schools receive about half of the local property taxes and the city government approximately one-fifth, and said School District Nine levies for only about one-third of its total budget, making up the remainder from other sources.

Cruse described his role as that of determining how the overall property tax bill is to be divided among property owners, based on typical values. He said a typical yearly bill is $700.

Although guesses and judgment were the principal assessing methods when he was first elected in 1967, scientific data and statistical comparisons provide most of the necessary information now, the assessor reported.

In addition, he said, opinion is utilized in defining a neighborhood as good, average, poor or unsound. Even such variables as inflation and depreciation are determined primarily through charts, he noted.

He recalled that prior to the current approach to assessing, the main way to defend against complaints was to ask a property owner, "Would you sell your home for three times its assessment?"

Cruse conceded that fair market value is harder to establish during a recession, when there are fewer actual sales of real estate.

From 383 transactions in 1979 and 522 in 1980, the number of property sales in Granite City decreased to 375 in 1981 and to only 85 parcels of property in the first six months of 1982, the club was told.

"I feel proud of my office," Cruse said in recalling that his initial staff consisted of one person. This grew to 15 several years ago but now stands only eight, he related. Reassessment plans are being made for 1983.

He was introduced by Paul Mills.

President Thomas Thebeau called attention to the annual Rotary-Optimist benefit auction Oct. 9 and the scheduled visit Aug. 31 by Rotary District 646 Governor Parker Steis.

Anna Carlsson, a youth exchange student sponsored by the Granite City Rotary Club, has arrived here from Sweden.

Gets 180 days on penal farm

John R. Rippy, 26, of 3030 Circle Drive, was sentenced to serve 180 days at the Vandalia Penal Farm when he appeared before Judge Thomas J. Hildebrand at 3 p.m. Monday in the Granite City Court.

Rippy, who pleaded guilty to charges of assault, criminal damage to property and criminal trespass to land, was sentenced to 180 days on the criminal damage charge and 30 days each on the other two charges, to be served concurrently with 180-day sentence.

He was arrested Sunday, Aug. 22, near the home of his former wife, Mrs. Peggy Rippy, 2604 W. Republic Homes, who allegedly had been threatened and harassed by Rippy.

The man reportedly had entered Mrs. Rippy's apartment while she was away and cut up her clothing and personal belongings, scattering the items about the yard and throwing clothing in a trash can.

Rippy allegedly had threatened her with bodily harm and, at that point, she ran outside the dwelling into Namekiki Road, almost being struck by a vehicle, to call police from a nearby phone.

Officers escorted Mrs. Rippy to the home of a friend, but she returned to the apartment later that day to find the door unlocked and lights on inside. Police also returned to the scene and reported seeing Rippy driving up and down in front of the apartment and they arrested him.

Mrs. Rippy also requested an order of protection for herself and 6-year-old son be entered into the court, it was learned.

Hearing aid service operator denies charges

"Definitely false," was how Clarence B. McCoy, operator of Medicare Hearing Aid Service Inc., of Granite City, described allegations in a consumer fraud suit filed Tuesday against him and the service by Attorney General Tyrone Fahner's office.

McCoy and his company are charged with failure to honor sales cancellations, misrepresenting consumers' needs for hearing aids, fitting aids improperly and charging amounts far above prices current market prices for hearing aids, sources said.

The attorney general seeks a permanent injunction prohibiting McCoy from operating in Illinois and seeks restitution to customers who suffered damages. It also seeks civil penalties, sources said.

The lawsuit was filed in Christian County Circuit Court at Taylorville.

McCoy told the Press-Record yesterday that he was unaware of the suit until he read about it in a St. Louis newspaper yesterday. "I know nothing of it. (The allegations) definitely are false," he stated.

McCoy also was charged by Fahner with failing to tell consumers that medical evaluation prior to purchasing a hearing aid would be in their best interests and with prescribing hearing aids to persons who had not received medical evaluations.

Fahner also questions newspaper advertisements claiming McCoy's company which claim it has served the area for 15 years, since it was not chartered as a corporation until 1977.

Dept. of Aging referral service earns recognition

Governor James R. Thompson announced Friday that the Department of Aging has received national recognition for its information and referral services from the Federal Administration on Aging.

"The Department on Aging in Illinois has long been recognized as one of the leading state agencies in the country to help senior citizens," the governor said.

"The Department's information, referral and in-home care services and its individual treatment for the elderly are regarded as models of the type of care senior citizens deserve."

"Thompson said that the Federal Administration on Aging honored Illinois along with Ohio and Maryland for their work in information and referral services.

"Director Peg Blaser and her staff are to be commended for the outstanding work they have accomplished on behalf of thousands of seniors," Thompson said. "We have worked diligently to establish standards, follow-up and alternative services to ensure that senior citizens in Illinois receive every service and consideration possible," Director Blaser said.

"The combined effort of the area agencies in Illinois and the information and referral offices in the Department are the key to our success and deserve much of the credit that comes with this recognition," she said.

BIDS OPEN SOON

The Illinois Department of Transportation will open bids on Aug. 27 for various transportation improvement projects located throughout the state, including weed control spraying over 128 miles of various routes in St. Clair and Madison counties. Total estimated value of the work is $25 million.

Road, transit fund hearing Sept. 8

State Representative Benedict Garmisa, chairman of the Illinois Transportation Study Commission, has announced a series of 16 public hearings to address the transportation needs throughout the state during September.

A hearing is set for 4 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 8, at the Collinsville Holiday Inn.

Noting that the upcoming election "made it impossible to address in any comprehensive fashion the serious funding problems facing Illinois relative to mass transit and highways during the last legislative session in Springfield," Garmisa said:

"Unless the new 83rd General Assembly which will be seated next January acts promptly to deal with the matter of transportation funding, our transportation infrastructure will suffer irreparable harm which may hamper our participation in the national economic recovery when it begins nationwide."

Garmisa continued, "For the past several years, we have been holding our mass transit and highway systems together with Band-Aids, bailing wire and promises."

"The pending cuts in federal aid for these programs now on the horizon will be the straw that broke the camel's back."

"If we are to avoid disaster as regards one of the most critical elements of our economy, the necessary preliminary steps toward developing an orderly consensus on goals and objectives must be placed in motion now — so that viable proposals are developed and on the table for consideration as a first order of business by the new Assembly."

Garmisa said that as part of this process, the commission must determine the perceptions and priorities of Illinois citizens concerning its transportation infrastructure through broad-based public hearings.

"For example," he said, "we have undertaken a thorough review of the Regional Traffic Authority in northeastern Illinois."

"Now that almost 10 years have elapsed since its creation there has been sufficient time that its structure should be thoroughly re-examined in conjunction with any required funding adjustments."

"As well, we need to know the level of maintenance of existing highways and new highway construction that the public will support, and whether funding proposals will have to be accompanied by any changes in administrative structures and procedures."

Garmisa noted that the hearings will emphasize input from citizens, organized interests, and other groups affected by transportation instead of testimony from large government agencies that administer the programs.

"We feel certain that people will support a properly constructed transportation program," Garmisa said, "and once we know what they would like to see incorporated, we can take those matters up with the Department of Transportation, RTA and others."

"I urge all persons and groups with an interest in Illinois transportation matters to participate in the hearings."

"It is unlikely there will be another opportunity as broad-based as this for direct input to the legislative process prior to action being taken."

The Illinois Transportation Study Commission is a 16-member agency of the Illinois General Assembly, with membership comprised of both state senators and representatives and public members with expertise in transportation matters.

Members of the commission are appointed for two-year terms by the majority and minority leadership of the General Assembly. Currently, the commission consists of eight Republican and eight Democratic members.

Under state law, the commission is required to report every two years to the General Assembly concerning transportation matters.

Findings and recommendations of the commission have been instrumental in the formulation of virtually every major transportation program that has been adopted in Illinois since the commission's creation in 1963.

The 1982 report is to be submitted Nov. 30.

Silo safety emphasized

By RON CORNWELL
County Farm Adviser

In the next few weeks, many farmers in Madison County will be filling silos. It is important that farmers are aware of the dangers of a newly filled silo.

Newly filled silos give off nitrogen dioxide, which is a yellow-brown colored gas. Inhaling nitrogen dioxide can be fatal. The respiratory problem caused by nitrogen dioxide is known as "Silo Filler's Disease."

Silo gas smells like laundry bleach. Because it is heavier than air, the gas stays on top of silage and settles down into the silage.

Silo gas often concentrates in the silo room and moves into the barn, where it leaves a yellow stain on materials it contacts. Dead birds and small animals are an indication that gases are at a dangerous level.

The greatest danger is during the first 60 hours after filling. Gas has been detected in dangerous quantities up to one year after filling in some cases.

Farmers should not enter a silo until 10 days after filling is completed, since nitrogen dioxide fumes are produced during the first 10 days. They should be sure to run the blower 15 to 20 minutes before entering the silo.

Cyclists may register in advance at Famous-Barr stores, various bicycle shops or at Kiener Plaza the night of the ride. The pre-registration fee is $1.50 and the late registration fee is $2. For more information, interested persons may call, 1-314-644-3350.

Chlorine use to be reduced

The Illinois Pollution Control Board has reiterated its pledge to sit down with leaders of AFSCME to discuss a furlough plan that will save the jobs of more than 1,000 state employees.

"I stand ready to meet with AFSCME leaders in an attempt to work out a solution of this issue. This is very important, not only for the state and the services that it provides to the people of Illinois, but also to state employees who unfortunately will face layoffs without a furlough plan in place."

"That is why I took the extra step, even after AFSCME rejected our plan earlier, to keep the door open for negotiations. We are sincere in our efforts to implement this plan and we will continue to make the extra effort to see that the furlough plan succeeds."

The board's opinion was based, in part, on adverse environmental effects of the discharge of chlorine into waters of the state. There is evidence that chlorine has both immediate and long-term toxic effects on some aquatic life.

"The new proposal should improve fishing along 700 miles of Illinois waterways. Widespread chlorination has resulted in the discharge of more than 10 tons of chlorinated compounds into Illinois streams every day," the board said.

"The evidence before the board indicates that the public health and safety considerations for and against chlorination tip the scales, without consideration of economic impacts which significantly favor selective disinfection."

The board's change in disinfection requirements does not alter other rules which prohibit discharge of raw or partially treated sewage into Illinois waterways. Required chlorination of public drinking water supplies will continue to be unaffected by this decision.

The board's opinion says that the statewide chlorination requirement, which has been in place for 10 years has not been an effective, disinfectant strategy.

There is no historical "before and after" evidence for the safety of chlorine disinfection. The universal chlorination rule itself may have created excessive reliance on the disinfectant capability of chlorination, the IPCB concluded.

Thompson backing furlough plan to save AFSCME jobs

Governor James R. Thompson has reiterated his pledge to sit down with leaders of AFSCME to discuss a furlough plan that will save the jobs of more than 1,000 state employees.

"I stand ready to meet with AFSCME leaders in an attempt to work out a solution of this issue. This is very important, not only for the state and the services that it provides to the people of Illinois, but also to state employees who unfortunately will face layoffs without a furlough plan in place."

"That is why I took the extra step, even after AFSCME rejected our plan earlier, to keep the door open for negotiations. We are sincere in our efforts to implement this plan and we will continue to make the extra effort to see that the furlough plan succeeds."

"However, the union must realize that the state cannot afford in these difficult economic times to give up its flexibility to respond to economic problems. We will not give away the store."

"While preliminary layoff notices have been sent at various times this month to some employees and the union, as required by contract, they were necessary to provide adequate notice if the furlough plan does not succeed."

"If we reach agreement on a furlough plan, these notices can be rescinded. AFSCME knows this and was aware of the preliminary layoff notices as early as Aug. 2. However, no formal layoff notices have been issued to those employees whose jobs would be saved by the furlough plan."

Special foster family sought

A special foster family is being sought in the Metro East area to care for Anthony, a 14-year-old abuse victim who is under the guardianship of the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services.

Described as handsome, athletic and polite, Anthony is 5'5" tall and weighs about 135 pounds. Unlike many troubled children who are victims of child abuse, he does well in school, according to Gail Holzhausen, resource development supervisor in the East St. Louis region.

"This kid thinks he's a loser and that nobody wants him," she said. "A strong and caring foster family or single parent can turn Anthony around and let him know that he can make it."

In spite of his many positives, which include a love of fishing, the boy does have problems, she added. "Anthony has run away in the past and has stolen from other children."

Currently residing in a temporary emergency foster home, he will be placed in a children's center if no suitable foster home is found.

Because Anthony has had behavior problems, foster parents caring for him may be eligible to become professional foster parents. Area residents interested in caring for him or to learning more about the department's regular or professional foster parent programs may call Pat at 876-8985.

Courts terminate 4,896 July cases

The volume of pending cases in Circuit Court, Third Judicial Circuit (Madison and Bond counties), increased during July by 204 cases, but progress was made in catching up currency in some of the most time-consuming case areas, including large law cases where juries were requested, according to the Supreme Court Administrative Office's report on this circuit's performance, released last week.

In releasing the report, Willard V. "Butch" Portell, circuit clerk, noted a considerable loss of currency in the felony division, "mainly due to the massive drug raids in the county."

He said, however, that 114 felony cases were terminated during the month (206 were filed), which is satisfactory during a month where many judges and circuit clerk office employees take their vacation.

During July, 5,100 cases were filed and 4,896 were terminated. Settling of law cases other than jury cases in which the plaintiffs are seeking more than $15,000 was considered productive, since there were few jury trials during July, Portell noted.

Following are the numbers of each major type of case filed, terminated and pending at the end of July

Cases	Filed	Terminated	Pending
Law cases seeking more than $15,000
Jury	56	43	2023
Non-jury	40	24	353
Law cases seeking $1,000 to $15,000
Jury	21	41	424
Non-jury	40	36	1019
Other cases
Chancery	43	41	502
Miscellaneous Remedy	50	61	515
Eminent Domain	0	0	41
Tax	0	106	285
Mental Health	22	23	6
Divorce	143	110	1014

Juvenile	52	46	298
Felony	206	114	4178
Misdemeanor	366	228	2178
Small Claims	375	289	2149
Totals	1,476	1,278	13,021

In the traffic division, 2,984 new cases were filed during July and 3,236 were terminated, the report shows.

Of the 70 felony defendants whose cases were terminated during the month, 46 were convicted of felonies, 66 charges were dismissed or consolidated with other cases, two were reduced to misdemeanors and one defendant was acquitted by a jury. There were one jury conviction during the month and that was for murder.

Quilty pleas during July included five for Class X felonies, one for a Class One felony, 20 for Class Two felonies, 15 for Class Three felonies and four for Class Four felonies.

Felony sentences during the month included 22 persons sent to prison, 18 receiving probation with periodic imprisonment and six receiving probation or conditional discharges with other conditions.

Zoning hearings on mobile home requests

The Madison County Zoning Board of Appeals will hold on-site public zoning hearings tomorrow at two locations in Quad-City Townships.

The first will be at 9 a.m. Friday at 427th Highway 162, near the Nantuxi Township garage and town hall, where Vancil, Paul and Brian Weiss are seeking a special use permit to continue the placement of a mobile home for Brian Weiss to occupy. The property is in an agricultural district of Nameoki Township.

At 9:30 a.m. Friday, the zoning board will move to Chouteau Island where John Loerch, property owner, and Diana Flowers are requesting a special use permit to place a single-wide mobile home for the residence of Diana Flowers and her family. The property is in a flood hazard area of Chouteau Township and is zoned for agricultural use. It can be reached driving west over the Chain of Rocks Canal Bridge onto the island, turning onto Waterworks Road and following it to the canal levee.

After the on-site zoning hearings, the board will meet in Edwardsville and render its recommendations. Those recommendations will be considered by the Madison County Board at its September meeting and the board will take final action on the requests.

Rep. Wolf endorsed by nurses

State Representative Sam W. Wolf has been endorsed for re-election to the House of Representatives by SNAPI (State Nurses Active in Politics in Illinois), the political arm of the Illinois Nurses' Association.

"Rep. Wolf has consistently demonstrated strong support for professional nursing and for quality health care," said Barbara Goldsberry, chairman of SNAPI. "He has assisted the INA in promoting important health measures in Springfield and understands that affordable health care for Illinois citizens must be a priority for public officials."

She added that he has also been active on behalf of labor and women's issues. The Illinois Nurses' Association, the professional organization representing the state's registered nurses, established SNAPI to provide nurses with a means to become politically active on behalf of candidates who have supported nursing goals in the Illinois legislature.

"As the largest group of health providers, nurses have a great interest in decisions affecting health care," the chairman said. "One in 44 women voters is a registered nurse. We are pleased to put our strength behind candidates who have worked for an equitable and compassionate health care system."

Burglars steal stereo equipment

Several pieces of stereo equipment and other items, valued at $2,700, were taken in a burglary at the home of Frank Bury, 1047 Washington Ave., Madison, reported early this week. Entry was gained by kicking the front door off its hinges.

Stolen were two cassette tapeplayers, an equalizer, speaker, turntable, an FM car radio, a clock, microphone and $200 worth of cassette and eight-track tapes.

The Chouteau Township registration location is the office of Patricia Polley, town clerk, in the Chouteau Town Hall on North Thorngate Drive, behind the Midwest Motel.

Nameoki Township residents may register with Donald Ridgeway in the supervisor's office, 4250 Highway 162, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Access to energy sources is urged

"A future that includes a reliable supply of fuel within a reasonable price range will be a future in which economic growth and industrial revitalization are made easier," John F. Bookout, president and chief executive officer of Shell Oil Co., said Monday night.

He spoke on "Energy: Detroit's Partner for the Future" at the Automotive News World Congress, held at the Renaissance Center in Detroit.

Bookout called energy availability and fuel costs "two key concerns of the recent past. They are the driving forces behind the changes now under way in the transportation industry."

Looking ahead, Bookout said, "We can see one future in which by 1990 the United States will need only about 15 million barrels a day of oil. We could produce about two-thirds of that need by maintaining today's domestic production level. Doing so would leave us relatively secure by having to import only about five million barrels a day."

But he warned, "If we let such optimism turn into complacency, leading to a loss of public interest in energy issues, we could find ourselves in a more uncertain future."

"First, the 15 million barrels of oil needed estimate is based on high expectations of what will be contributed by all the other components of the national energy diet: natural gas, coal, nuclear power and synthetic fuels."

The speaker cited obstacles faced by those fuels: "If they fail to contribute according to expectations, this country could be looking at an extra two, three or maybe four million barrels a day of imported oil. That means we would no longer see that optimistic future with a secure vehicle fuel supply."

A second uncertainty can be found in the estimate for domestic oil production, he said. "The nation can't be complacent if we expect to hold production at or near today's level. To meet that goal, we need:

— "Access to lands controlled by the federal government.

— "Time to explore and then to develop what we find.

"And capital to sustain the high level of effort that will be required.

"Last year, that effort for energy development in the U.S. by all companies was about $80 billion. But ever-increasing tax rates, already double the average of all other industries threaten that capital formation ability.

"The secretary of the Interior's plan to open up the Outer Continental Shelf to exploration more quickly is the most important step we could take toward a healthy and secure energy future for America.

"Allowing the industry to pursue the new leasing schedule without undue delays is our best chance of avoiding increased dependence on foreign oil supplies.

"We can have a better future. We can avoid the trap of complacency by aggressively developing all of our energy resources.

"Within the oil industry, we're working hard to insure that all of us will experience the better of the two futures — working hard to make what is left over from softer prices and high taxes go as far as possible.

"I believe we will meet that challenge. In 1982, it's estimated that U.S. oil production will be higher than it has been since 1978, prior to the last international oil shock.

"The consequence of overdependence on imported oil can only be the tragic repetition of 1974 and 1979 — chaos at the pumps, unhappy days for the consumer, and trouble for the automobile and energy industries. Such a future is obviously not in the national interest.

"The more domestic production we have, the more leverage this country will have over the international price of oil and the less vulnerable we'll all be to disruption of supply from unpredictable foreign events."

He concluded, "It's confident that given the necessary time, access and capital, this industry can do the job and Detroit can look to us as a reliable partner in a dynamic future."

SIUE receives energy awards

Five energy management awards have been received by Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville in recognition of energy savings affected during calendar year 1981.

Presented by the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources, the awards cite overall energy usage reductions as follows:

- 8.6 percent at the University's East St. Louis campus;
- 10.6 percent at Tower Lake Apartments, family units;
- 10.3 percent at Tower Lake Apartments, single units;
- 10.1 percent at the University's main campus; and 7.8 percent at all SIUE facilities.

Jim Johnson, chief engineer at Plant Operations, revealed in May that the University had achieved cumulative savings of 60 percent in natural gas consumption between 1971 and 1981, while a 25 percent reduction in electricity was effected during the 10 years.

In the same period, total square footage serviced by the University had increased by more than 40 percent. Johnson could recall at least 25 separate measures that contributed to the overall economies, ranging from the installation of a computerized building energy control system to reduced interior and exterior lighting levels.

An energy audit currently being undertaken at the University is expected to find ways of reducing energy consumption even further, Johnson said. The study will examine the present system, calculate the full range of costs, and examine existing and potential cost-cutting measures in terms of feasibility and efficiency.

The energy management awards announced this week follow an award last week to Charles M. Moorleghen, director of Plant Operations at SIUE, who was honored by the Physical Plant Directors of the State of Illinois for "outstanding leadership in physical plant administration."

Nab boy, 13, for entering 2 autos

For the offense of entering two parked autos, a Granite City boy, 13 years old, was arrested in the 2000 block of Madison Avenue at 10:25 p.m. Monday and was transferred 90 minutes later to the Madison County juvenile detention home.

At 9:30 p.m. Monday, the boy took a brown leather wallet containing cards and papers from the glove compartment of the car of the Lazar family, 2024 Illinois Ave., while it was parked in the 1900 block of Grand Avenue.

He fled but was caught not quite an hour later inside the car of Tina LaRose, 315 Miracle Ave. She had parked it in a lot while visiting at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. The Lazar wallet and some of its contents were found near 20th Street and Grand Avenue.

FBI to talk about Zevallos case?

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Editor

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, which has been under fire this week for a lack of cooperation with area law enforcement agencies and the press, has hidden that it may change its posture soon and begin releasing some information about the abduction and subsequent release of Dr. Hector Zevallos, 53, and his wife, Rosalie Jean, 45.

The Zevalloses were kidnapped from their home in Country Club Estates Aug. 12, and were released unharmed Aug. 20. A group calling itself the "Army of God" claimed responsibility for the kidnapping and cited anti-abortion sentiments. Dr. Zevallos operates Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City, and Hope Medical Group for Women in Shreveport, La., where abortions are performed.

While the stance FBI line, "We have no comment about this at this time," has been blasted by the area press this week, the FBI's tactics in trying to solve the Zevallos case, single-handedly, has come under fire from area law enforcement agencies.

Agencies have indicated that some members of the Madison County Sheriff's Department and Illinois State Police feel that the FBI acted in failing to notify them of the Zevallos's safe return to their Edwardsville home until about two hours after they were released.

Some feel that roadblocks and surveillance in the critical hour after the couple was released may have resulted in the arrest of the kidnappers as they left the vicinity of the Edwardsville Holiday Inn, where the release occurred.

Madison County Sheriff Enli Toffant said this morning that he agrees that cooperation between the FBI and local authorities is "not to our satisfaction," but said, "I'm sure before this is all over, they are going to call us and discuss everything they've got."

Toffant confirmed that the sheriff's department turns over its investigation results to the FBI daily, but receives little or no information back from the federal agency.

Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber returned this week from a two-week vacation and registers that he feels the time for local authorities to take a part in the investigation is now. He noted that there may have been federal law violations, but the kidnapping also was violation of a state law and local authorities have a right to step in and investigate violations of state laws.

Weber said he wants an explanation from the FBI on the status of the investigation by the end of this week or early next week.

The Press-Record editorially urged the FBI Monday to release more information about the case and avoid speculation and "leaks" of information which could harm the investigation. There were indications yesterday that the FBI might change its stance today and begin releasing some information.

Glenn Young, special agent-in-charge of the St. Louis FBI office, said yesterday that his office might issue a statement today. At press time, no such statement had been issued, however.

Lack of concrete evidence has led area newspapers to seek "leak" information and to quote "sources close to the investigation," "a well-placed source," and simply, "source."

Such unnamed sources have been credited with leaking information that the FBI is seeking three men who kidnapped the Zevalloses, at least one who was armed with a gun at that time.

Some newspapers have printed supposed contents of the "epistles," a rambling document said to be about 44 pages long, which was taped to the chimney of a restroom in Forest Park after the FBI received a telephone call from Dr. Zevallos while he was in custody, telling them where to find the epistles and a tape recorded message.

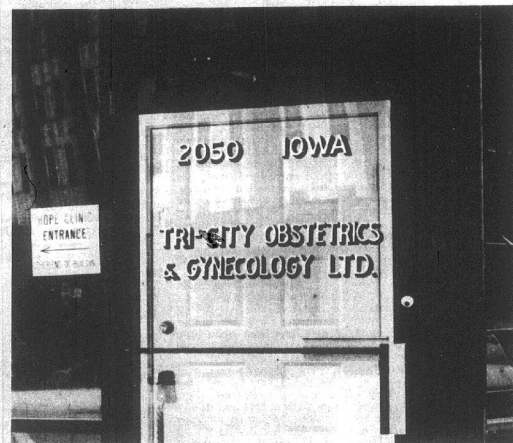

The FBI has not commented on newspaper reports that the epistles carried a threat to kill Dr. Zevallos and his wife or that the Army of God in the documents claimed responsibility for the kidnapping and the Zevallos kidnapping, but for firebombings at abortion clinics in Clearwater and St. Petersburg, Fla., and Falls Church, Va.

Neither would federal authorities comment on published reports that the epistles demanded that President Ronald Reagan denounce abortion, take necessary measures to stop it, including military force, if necessary, and issue a presidential pardon of the Army of God.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat quotes from the epistles, saying that an entry made the day of the kidnapping states, "These people (abortionists) are responsible for the murdering of God's children. They will be immediately executed."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch says sources disclose that the FBI is seeking three white men in their 40s and 50s and the investigation is concentrated on St. Clair County, in the Collinsville, Fairview Heights and Belleville areas. The FBI will not confirm any of these reports.

Meanwhile, the National Abortion Federation has alerted its 40 members to be prepared for possible violent anti-abortion actions against clinics Sept. 17 and 18, which NAMES ARE GONE. The names of Dr. Hector Zevallos and his clinic partner, Dr. Yogendra Shah, no longer appear on the door of the entrance to Tri-City Obstetrics & Gynecology, Ltd., which occupies the Hope Clinic for Women in Granite City. Dr. Zevallos asked clinic personnel to remove his name from the door the day he was released by kidnappers calling themselves the "Army of God," a radical anti-abortion group. The clinic remains open. Dr. Zevallos owns both Hope Clinic in Granite City and Hope Medical Group for Women in Shreveport, La.

are said to be anti-abortion target dates leaked from a pro-life convention.

Whether or not Dr. Zevallos has ended his role with Hope Clinic is not known and the doctor has declined, for the time being, an invitation to talk to reporters. The Press-Record disceased Monday that Dr. Zevallos' name had been scraped from the outside window of his office in the clinic building by an employee and a Press-Record reporter was told by a nurse that his name had been removed at the doctor's request.

The name of Dr. Yogendra Shah, a partner in the clinic, also was removed from the door of the doctors' offices and clinic employees had little to say, other than the clinic still is seeing patients.

The Walkathon also observes the 62nd anniversary of women receiving the right to vote.

Bi-State routes in downtown St. Louis to change next week

Beginning Monday, Aug. 30, all Missouri bus routes traveling through the St. Louis downtown area will be rerouted to improve traffic flow in the central business district. The new "Simplified Routing Plan" which is being implemented by the Bi-State Development Agency in conjunction with the city of St. Louis, will consolidate bus routes onto fewer streets.

Within the central business district, outbound Missouri buses will operate on streets designated by the direction of their final destination. Buses traveling to the north area will operate on Ninth Street, buses going to the northwest area will operate on Washington and buses going toward the south and southwest areas will operate on Locust. Buses will use other streets as well, as they loop through downtown, but the majority of movement will be on Ninth, Washington, and Locust.

The Simplified Routing Plan will give passengers the opportunity to take alternate buses to their destination from a single bus stop. Outbound buses will operate in enforced "bus only" curb lanes, which should ease the problem of stopped and parked cars blocking rush hour traffic. "Both bus riders and those who drive downtown should find advantages in the new Simplified Routing Plan," according to Michael H. Setzer, general manager of transit for Bi-State. "Bus riders only need to remember one street to catch their regular bus or another going the same way and drivers can more easily avoid competing with buses for lanes. The whole traffic flow in the downtown area should be smoother."

Setzer also urged bus riders to familiarize themselves with new routes prior to Monday, Aug. 30, the day the Simplified Routing Plan becomes effective. "We have mounted a comprehensive public information campaign, but are still concerned that there will work on Monday, that will be some people who don't know where to go."

Information on the Simplified Routing Plan is available from Bi-State by writing to 707 North First Street, St. Louis, Mo., 63102, or by calling 1-314-231-2345. Setzer said that the telephone information service, which is normally closed on weekends, will operate a hotline on August 28 and 29 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., for bus riders seeking last minute information.

GASOLINE PLENTIFUL FOR LABOR DAY
Motorists planning to travel over the Labor Day weekend should have no problem finding gasoline, according to the Auto Club of Missouri.
An added bonus, the club reports, prices are expected to be two to four cents a gallon lower than during the same holiday last year. Gasoline in the metropolitan area is also about a penny a gallon below prices in June, 1982.
Approximately 75 percent of service stations contacted, including those in Illinois, plan to remain open on Labor Day, Sept. 6, the Auto Club said.

SOUTH PRACTICE. The Granite City High School South soccer team is preparing for its home season opener on Sept. 2 against Alton High School at 6 p.m. Already, the team is working toward the Illinois High School Association state championships. Coach Gene Baker said the team will have a tough schedule, including two tournaments, before vying for the state title. Last year was the first time in six years that South did not compete in the championship tourney. South won state five consecutive years, making the team one of the best in the nation.

Seniors dominate South's soccer

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

Gene Baker does not usually care for the situation the Granite City High School South soccer team is in this season. It has happened before, most notably in 1977, and again this year, South will be a team comprised mostly of seniors.

It makes it rough on next year's team when most of the starters graduate. This year, however, South will be a team of experienced players with 15 returning lettermen, 11 of whom are seniors.

With a 19-4-5 record last year, South statistically had a good season, "but at the same time we didn't win state for the first time in six years," Baker said. Even though the team is in the practice stage with the first game scheduled for Sept. 2 at home against Alton, Baker and the team are already thinking of the state tournament.

"We're a tournament team," Baker said. As preparation for state, Baker has scheduled two tourneys, one in September at Glenbrook North and the other in October which South will host.

"I feel when we get to the state tournament everything else is gravy beyond that," he said. "We work toward the state tournament."

South certainly has the ability and experience this year to hold up under tournament pressure and there is an added element not always so evident in past teams. Comradery.

"This is a group I've enjoyed working with as much as any other," Baker said and then mentioned "comradery," "attention" and "chemistry" as positive factors with the team.

"From the standpoint as coach, this is a class bunch of kids," he said. The team is led by tri-captains Tony Segobiano, a back and Billy Hency and Barry Grote, both links. The three take charge at practice and will do the same on the field.

Baker does have an advantage in working with this year's team over last year's size. Last year, Baker and Bunting worked with a huge squad which made practices more difficult. This year, they have cut from 75 who came out for the team to 41.

After some "second guessing" about last season, Baker decided it might be best to work with a smaller group.

"That's not to say that Collinsville would not have beat us (with a smaller squad last year)," Baker said.

This season's schedule will be one of the most difficult ever. The "perennial powers" are included not one of the games is an assured victory. "Our schedule is awfully good," Baker said.

With a promising team, of well-balanced players, South certainly has a sixth state championship in mind.

Granite South Warriors

NORTH SCRIMMAGE. The soccer team at Granite City High School North shows good potential this year according to coach Bob Kehoe. A traditionally strong team, North's forward line this year is quick, but Kehoe said he feels the outcome of the season hinges on the backfield. North opens its season Saturday at Quincy, Notre Dame at 1 p.m. and plays Edwardsville there at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Kehoe says Steelers show 'good potential'

By NANCY WEIL
of the Press-Record

With two days until the opening game against Quincy Notre Dame, Bob Kehoe, Granite City High School North soccer coach, is looking upon his team with mixed reactions.

On one hand, he feels there is "good potential" on the team. With nine returning lettermen, all of whom are seniors, Kehoe has some experience on the team. Tentatively, he said he will start eight seniors, one sophomore and a freshman.

The conspicuous absence of juniors started three years ago when only five freshmen came out for the team; only two of the five remain.

Most of the experience will compose the forward line with Steve Trittschuh, an all-state defenseman in his junior year, in the backfield and Rich Branding, whom Kehoe believes "is one of the best if not the best," in goal.

"The key to our success is going to be how well the backfield does," Kehoe said. North lost four starting backfielders from last year and three starting forwards. While the numbers lost seem equitable on both offense and defense, the problem is experience. The remaining forwards simply have more than the remaining backfielders.

Undoubtedly the experience problem will rectify itself somewhat as the season progresses. At this point, Kehoe is concerned with the team's practice play. "I'm seeing them in practice and they're not playing to their fullest. They can do better," he said.

He admitted he might "not be reading the personnel right." And scrimmages are a great deal different than games.

One clear advantage North has — aside from its reputation as having a strong team — is speed. The forward line generally is quick and appear to be exceptional ball handlers. And, with the nucleus of the backfield taking its cues from Trittschuh, who is "really built well" and as strong as many collegiate players, the team appears solid.

The real test of North's ability starts

Saturday at Quincy. "They'll be tough," Kehoe said. There will be no sure wins on North's schedule this year.

Last year, North was 13-2-6. The larger than average number of ties came about for several reasons. "Sometimes it's the opposition, sometimes it's our own mistakes and our attitude," Kehoe said. A couple of times, the team went on the field believing an easy win was imminent only to finish tied.

"I don't pay so much attention to winning," he said. With such a strong schedule and "potential to hold up under pressure," North will have an exciting season.

Warrior gridders looking to improve this season

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor

Granite City High School South football coach Jerry McKeehan is "excited" about this year's edition of the Warrior football team.

"We've got some good kids out this year," McKeehan said. "If we can win early and keep our morale up we should be able to play with anybody."

Part of McKeehan's optimism should be attributed to returning quarterback John Linhart. Linhart, a senior, is starting his second season as the signal caller.

McKeehan said Linhart's passing game should be the equalizing factor in the coming season for the Warriors.

"Sure, we're going to run the ball, but John's really looking good. Linhart's a leader, he's big team stuff," McKeehan said. "If we can establish a passing game, our running game will open up."

The Warrior's running game will consist of backs Jon Frangoulis and Don Hammond. Both are strong and should fit well in the Warrior backfield, McKeehan said.

South's passing game will primarily rest on the shoulders of wide receivers Tom Adamitis and Rick Mumphord and tight end John Adams. Adamitis will attempt to fill the vacancy of departing senior Rick Daily, while Mumphord will fill in for Joe Schnefke.

If there is one thing that looks good for the 1982 edition of the Warriors it is the number of returning lettermen: 19.

"I'm happy to have that many returning," McKeehan said, "but we still lost some to jobs and other interests."

Another bright spot in the Warrior camp this year is in the offensive line, McKeehan said. "We've got good size up front, but not a whole lot of depth. But, we're still looking in the woods for more."

Defensively, the Warriors are still taking shape, but again McKeehan is optimistic. He's confident that his team will not face another season similar to last year's 0-9 campaign.

The Warrior gridders open their season Sept. 10 against Belleville East.

Wyrostek: Grid Steelers look strong

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor

Granite City High School North football coach Tom Wyrostek stood on the practice field Wednesday analyzing his offense. The Steeler second offense was yielding yards to a determined defense.

After the scrimmage, Wyrostek okayed a drink of water for the gridders. He then discussed his team.

"We've got three offensive units," he explained. "We should be pretty strong offensively."

Leading that offense this year will be two signal callers, senior Barry Watson and sophomore Shane Cole. Although Wyrostek alluded that Watson would be the Steeler's primary signal caller, he seemed hesitant to count Cole out. The other positions in the back field were more definite, Wyrostek said.

Starting for the Steelers at fullback will be Darren DePew. Al Prangel has claimed the half back position.

Wyrostek was hesitant to predict another season as successful as last year's, despite twelve returning lettermen. Last year, the Steelers state bound campaign ended with a record of 7-2.

Offensively, Wyrostek predicts his team will feature an equally balanced running and passing game. "I think if you're going to win, you need a balance of both," Wyrostek said.

Granite North Steelers

Defensively, Wyrostek said, things are not as definite. "Our defense?" he said. "I think we're going to go with something of six."

The Steelers open their season against Roxana on Sept. 10 at Roxana.

Inter-City finale Sunday

The Corral Liquor Cowboys will take their 13-11 record to the Edwardsville Nationals this Sunday, Aug. 29, when the two teams meet at Wilson Park's diamond one at 1 p.m. to determine the Inter-City League champion. The Cowboys are last year's league champions.

Corral and Edwardsville split a double header last Sunday in Edwardsville to even the playoff victories at one each. Corral won the first game 7-4, while the Nationals picked up the second game 13-12. Corral earned its berth in the playoffs by sweeping a double header from league leading McDonalde Aug. 15, while Edwardsville managed to do the same against the Maryville Red Sox. The Red Sox team, Collinsville, dropped out of the league in July because they were unable to field a team.

Sports of All Sorts

Marbles: A forgotten sport?

By AL BARNES
For the Press-Record

Jeez, I sure don't want to get tagged as living in the past, but it has dawned on me in recent years ... in talks with all my 11 grandchildren ... that the kids of today have missed out ... entirely ... on the thrills and joys that I and my generation experienced when we were growing up in the decade from 1920 through at least 1940.

That 20 years, of course, was a period of relatively simple joys and the kids, for the most part, had to make their own fun. Consequently, we tended to participate in athletic contests which are hardly even known today: marbles, mummy peck, poke, skip rope and jacks, just to mention a few.

Marbles was a sport which demanded a very high degree of skill revealing that of our present day athletes in tennis and golf, football and baseball, hockey and soccer, basketball and field hockey, etc.

Each town, in the twenties and thirties, held tournaments to select its marbles champion. And, of course, the national champion was finally chosen and shown on news reels like Fox Movie News, March of Time, Public News, et al. He was almost always a freckled, face 12 to 18 year-old, with an infectious smile and a confident look befitting a national champion.

Marbles held a unique place in American life for that period up through 1940, roughly speaking, and was, generally speaking, almost totally a male sport. Jacks, of course, was the girls' exclusive sport.

The marbles season started nationally around the first of March and lasted through the Labor Day weekend. Every school boy had his collection of marbles of all sorts ... agates, steels, etc., and "playing for keeps" was an activity which educators and parents futilely attempted to stop but were never able to successfully. It was a sport so typically suited to the American life style.

Looking back on it, the skill needed to survive in marble competition was greater, I think, than in any sport now common on the American scene. At the level of state champions, the degree of skill of each were simply fantastic. The control of their "shooters" were nearly unbelievable and more than surpassed the skills in present day tennis and golf, et al. Their playing for "position" in the center of the ring was far superior to anything that the recognized genius of Willie Mosconi in pool ever displayed; or that Jimmy Connors, Jack Nicholas, Magic Johnson and Red Grange ever accomplished in their sports.

And, that's the sad part of this column. In the last month, I have cross-examined at least 50 young men, ages seven through 17, about marbles and my universal reaction in all cases: a blank stare of non-knowledge. I've asked countless older people in town if they remembered Granite City's last "marbles champion"? None did. Same about the city's last girls' jacks champion.

And, talking about a sport of that period requiring an extremely high degree of skill was rope-jumping or skipping. The young ladies who excelled in rope-jumping rivalled, in my mind, at least, the skills of the ballet straight from Moscow. The good ones were truly a thing of beauty and skill.

No one, too, could tell me who the area's last girls' jacks' champion. It was a sport which entranced me ... not only for the skills which the young women displayed but also for the charm they used to accompany each step in the sport.

The sport of tops ... when is the last time you saw a top ... was one which engrossed most young men back there before television. The skills which the best young men picked up in tops were nothing less than sensational. What the best could do with their tops was mind-boggling ... and fascinating.

What caused the death of these sports of my early days? They were sports which most American boys and girls participated in. My candidate for causing the demise of marbles, jacks, et al was the advent of television.

Our current crop of 6-to-16 girls and boys and their utter fascination with Pac Man, etc., are missing out on an unique thrill ... the participation of actually taking part in sports like marbles and rope skipping.

I suspect, too, that then and now is summed up thusly: then, we had to provide our own fun; now, we tend to get ours vicariously by sitting in front of a TV set.

We are all the losers, I'm sure. In conclusion: I would like to compile a list of marble champions going back in the history of Venice, Granite City and Madison through the twenties and thirties. Please write me: Al Barnes, 2320 State Street, Granite City, Ill. 62040.

Cardinals are still number one

The Cardinal baseball series against San Francisco was something else. What a series! The Cards stole (no pun intended) two of three from the Frank Robinson and his Giants.

I had the opportunity to see the game Friday night when the Cards edged San Francisco 7-6. What a baseball game! The Cards outlasted the Giants for the win, but it was a real nail biter. I couldn't help feeling the Cards were somehow going to let this one get away (especially since they squandered a seven run lead the night before).

The duel was a classic. A hard-hitting San Francisco club hit four home runs for five of its runs. The Cards, however, didn't manage to clear the boards, but that didn't keep them from managing a round tripper. Lonnie Smith managed an in-the-park homer, much to the delight of the nearly 40,000 fans in attendance.

As I mentioned, it was a classic ballgame—baseball at its finest. While San Francisco, muscled and batted its way into the run column with long balls, St. Louis picked away a little at a time at the Giant defense, hitting singles, doubles, triples and even Smith's homer. It was a masterful game of baseball (on the Cardinals part) as ever seen.

Although the Eastern Division leading Cards could hardly be called "underdogs," they seemed that way to the struggling Giants. Granted, the Cards were aided by the Giant five errors, but afterwards many fans, myself included, felt as though the little guys beat the Giants, even with their heavy equipment—something like David beating Goliath.

As for the Cards, they're beating the odds. No, they don't lead the league in homers. No, they're not leading the league with a team high batting average, and no, they're not leading the league with the most stolen bases. But they ARE leading the National League East by two full games.

The Cards are as a balanced team as any. Last night, however, the Cards seemed flat against Los Angeles. Fernando Valenzuela worked his wonder as he held the Redbirds to just six hits in the contest. Ironically, LA's 11-3 victory last night was the same score of Monday's game, the only game of the series the Cards won.

The Cards will get their chance to even the score against Los Angeles during their upcoming road trip to the west coast. But the Cards' success rate in Los Angeles is even worse than at home. Needless to say, the upcoming west coast road trip is crucial.

The Cards begin the trip with a series against San Diego. Monday, the Cards begin a three-game stand against Los Angeles followed by a three-game stand against the Giants that winds up Labor Day Sunday. If the Cards' west coast road trip can be nearly as productive as their last road trip, (winning 6 of 7) the Cards should breeze to a pennant finish. Realistically,

Sports on the Run

By Al Gerstenegger

If the Cards can take two of three from San Diego (Sunday's game is a double header), at least one from LA, and a pair from San Francisco (emerging 5-4 on the trip) they should retain a respectable lead in the East.

September should prove interesting in the National East. After they return from California, the Cards play ONLY teams in their division until the regular season ends Oct. 3.

The Cards begin with Montreal at home, followed by New York at home for three. Beginning Sept. 13, the Redbirds travel to Philadelphia for a three game stand against the Phillies. After Philadelphia, the Cards reciprocate their New York stand for three in the Big Apple. On Sept. 20 and 21, Philadelphia is in town for two games followed by Pittsburgh and Chicago for a pair each. The Cards end their season on the road with a pair of games against Montreal, Pittsburgh and Chicago each.

For baseball fans, it should be a dream. For the Cardinals' sake let's hope it's a pleasant one.

ALAN FORBES, member of Boy Scout Troop Five, aids another scout in making a Bluebird house for the nearly extinct Bluebirds. Although the tiny birds filled the sky years ago their numbers are dwindling due to larger birds destroying Bluebird eggs and man destroying their habitat.

MAKING REFUGE. Alan Forbes, Tom Hayden, Bluebird specialist, and Rick Hill, mount one of the first Bluebird houses. Approximately 70 boxes were made with the assistance of area troops and the building trades class at Granite City High School South. The small houses have been placed in Edwardsville, Carlinville, Chouteau Island, Flat River, Mo., Grafton and Camp Sunnen. A total of 35 Bluebirds were spotted at these sites.

Motorcyclists hurt on 19th

Michael Urioste, 24, of 2 Lakeview Drive and a passenger on his motorcycle, Jeff Thompson, 24, of Peoria both sustained injuries during the weekend on 19th Street at Delmar Avenue.

Urioste, who was operating the westbound cycle, told police the driver of an auto began harassing him and that, as he started to pass the dark-colored car, the vehicle struck the motorcycle.

Thompson was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Urioste, also injured, declined immediate treatment.

GUNS STOLEN

Three guns, a Nikko 12-gauge pump, Remington 12-gauge pump and a Remington 30-06 rifle, hidden under a bed at the home of Eric Skouby, 2920 Marshall Ave., were reported stolen last week by the owner. Entry was apparently gained through a window on the south side of the house, according to the report.
